Enlightening testimony from Covington, Ga., about murdering Negroes under peonage slavery. Clyde Manning, a negro farm hand, testifies. Farm laborers, Peterson and Preston, were tied up, then chained to one hundred pounds of rock. Thomas Williams, white farmer accused of the murders, drove the car that took the bound negroes to a bridge and says Manning: "They were stubborn and begging. And me and Charley rolled them over the banister into the river."

That's a picture of civilization; white man planning it, "me and Charley," two negroes, carrying out the orders and drowning their helpless, bound colored brothers. That ought to interest theorists who think the world is ready for perfect government.

Active, aggressive beasts at the top, the "intelligent white man," and passive, dull beasts at the bottom. It will take many centuries to reach your perfect government or civilization.

Flying machines between Paris and London are crowded, and now they allow a few passengers to stand up in the passageway between seats, "holding onto the luggage racks"—straphangers in the air.

They talk of "inflation," too much money in the United States and in Europe. The total amount of money in the United States on the first of this month was $8,082,775,566.

Of this amount three thousand millions are in gold. The total is about $80 for every human being in the United States. Is that too much?

The increase in a year is thirty cents per person—you would not call that inflation. Of course the business of the country is not done with money but with checks and by credits. But if the amount of money were multiplied by five, conditions would be better. There are not enough financial "chips" to keep the United States game going comfortably.

Europe and Japan have been informed by the United States that this nation intends to have something to say in all settlements following the war.

The Japanese gentlemen that kept adroitly out of the war, attending industriously to business after taking what they wanted in their neighborhood, were allowed to help themselves to islands in the Pacific when the war was over.

They and the rest of the "League of Nations" learn from Uncle Sam that he will have something to say about the "mandates" and other distributions.

This country sent three million men to Europe, spent fifty thousand million dollars, and President Harding seems to know it.

Charles Hapsburg, once ruler of Austria-Hungary, has gone back to Switzerland, sadder and safer. In the archbishop's palace, and the castles of the sycophantic nobles, he was told that Hungary and Austria were eager to receive him. But, while travelling back to Switzerland, Austrian workers attacked his train, smashed doors and windows and he was lucky to escape with his life. About some things the workers of Europe are uncertain of, but they are absolutely certain that they have had enough of Emperors.

The American Steamship Owners' Association announces proposed reductions in wages of men at sea—seaman cut from $85 to $65, firemen from $90 to $67.50, oilers from $85 to $70, cooks and mess men from $70 to $55. Steamship owners believe that men are cheaper than they were.

They also believe "it is a poor rule that does not work both ways." Therefore, while announcing a reduction in wages of seamen, ocean freight rates are increased from 50 to 200 per cent.

In Chicago more than six thousand apartments are vacant, rents constantly going higher, and they ask "How can this be?"

It isn't puzzling, it's simply organization. There was plenty of coal in the ground while the price was going up 200 per cent. The idea is always to take out a little less coal than people need, always to rent fewer apartments than the people need, and by making the people worry about necessities, make them willing to pay.

President Harding tells ladies of the Woman's Peace Party that he cannot disarm the United States yet. And he can't. It costs too much to REARM in case you need to.

This country will remember that in return for more than a thousand million dollars it did not get one single fighting flying machine. When a country knows that it can't GET ready, the most sensible thing to do is to KEEP ready.

Briand, Prime Minister of France, tells his fellow countrymen that if Germany does not pay on May 1st, she will be made to pay. The process of compelling payment will be difficult and interesting. Important cities, probably, will be seized, Berlin and others. But that will not solve the problem of getting millions in gold. The amount demanded is not there, and what is there is easy to hide. It has been suggested that the French might collect the income of street cars, railroads, etc. But just now those conveniences are run at little, if any, profit, and fares are paid in paper marks, not gold.

HIRED ASSASSIN DESCRIBES SCENE OF ELWELL MURDER

COMMANDS POLICE TO PROTECT SELVES

Curtis Issues "Force" Order to Patrolmen Handling Strike Rioters

Boston police officers are told in a general order issued by Commissioner Curtis, through Superintendent Crowley, to "be on the job" every minute during the present strike of building trades workers.

The order also instructs them that, in view of "frequent recent assaults upon patrolmen," the Commissioner wishes it understood that "officers are not supposed to have their lives endangered without using such force as may be necessary to subdue any person or persons threatening their lives."

"It has been called to our attention," says the order, "that many individuals are carrying arms. Officers on duty where strikes are going on will be very observant, and if necessary will 'frisk' persons suspected of carrying such arms."

Commanders of divisions are instructed to ascertain the location of all building and contracting jobs in their divisions, including street and pavement work, so as "to be able to cope with any trouble that might arise, and to keep the workmen employed on such work protected at all times."

They are also told to instruct their subordinate officers to "keep all persons near such jobs moving," and all persons making threats against workmen "during the present trouble, where this fact can be proved, should be prosecuted according to law."

'Mrs. Fairchild Richly Dressed Blonde'

Buffalo, N. Y., April 7.—Roy Harris, describing the woman who, he says, hired him and "Bill Dunkin" to kill Joseph S. Elwell, said she was a striking blonde of medium build, apparently between thirty and thirty-five years old. Her eyes were blue. She was a woman of means, he judged, because she wore many diamond rings. An elaborate traveling pendant set with a ruby hung about her neck and she wore a gold bracelet on the left wrist, he said. She wore a long light-weight fawn-colored automobile coat and a black and red turban hat, and, said Harris, she seemed a woman of taste in choosing garments.

Harris said he had talked to her and ridden in a taxicab with her and so had an opportunity to observe her.

DRAWS SKETCH OF VICTIM'S HOME

By International News Service.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 7.—"Gee, I feel better now. You know I couldn't sleep day or night with that Elwell killing weighing on my mind. Yes, I've told the true story and I feel much relieved."

The foregoing was the first statement of Roy Harris, who startled the country by signing a confession that he and another man killed Joseph Bowne Elwell, turfman and bridge whist expert, in his New York apartment last June, when he awoke in his cell at police headquarters this morning.

One of the most important developments in the case came quite unexpectedly and added tremendous color to the story told by Harris.

William Sherwood, a New York detective in the employ of William J. Burns, has been in Buffalo for some time, having been employed by the city of Buffalo to try to solve the mysterious murder of Luther P. Graves, Yale athlete and prominent Buffalo society man.

Sherwood was in New York at the time of the Elwell murder and is familiar with the details of that tragedy. Today, after Harris had breakfast, Sherwood was admitted to the room in which he was being guarded by the police.

"Roy," said Sherwood, "can you draw a diagram of the Elwell apartments?"

"Certainly, I can," replied Harris.

"Do it," directed Sherwood.

Paper and pencil were handed Harris and he drew what was declared by Sherwood to be a practically perfect diagram of the Elwell apartments.

PERFECT PLAN.

The effect of this was to convince the police that Harris' story will hold up.

After Sherwood had made a studious survey of the sketch made by Harris, newspapermen asked the Burns detective for an opinion on it.

"That sketch is practically a perfect plan of the interior of the Elwell residence," said Sherwood. "I was in New York at the time. I had occasion to learn the full story of the murder of Elwell and all details such as house design.

"I would say that these plans are

BOARD REFUSES WAGE CUTS BY RAILROADS

Chicago, April 7.—Applications filed by the New York Central, New York, New Haven & Hartford, Boston & Maine, Boston & Albany, Boston Terminal Company, Maine Central and the other railroads for permission to put into effect temporary wage cuts retroactive to April 1 were denied in a decision handed down today by the United States Railway Labor Board.

HAVERHILL WORKERS GET NOTICE OF CUT

Haverhill, April 7.—The first official notice of a reduction of wages in the local building trades was received by the Sheet Metal Workers, Local 606, from the Master Sheet Metal contractors giving notice of the intention to reduce wages 20 per cent. After discussing the proposition, it was unanimously voted by the members present to stand by their demand for $1 an hour, the same wage as paid last year.

FORGER SAYS PAL SHOT ELWELL AS VICTIM SLEPT IN CH...

WOMAN PAID $5,000 TO KILL CLUBMAN, CLAIMS SUSPECT

Claiming he was one of two men hired to kill Elwell for $5,000 last June by a woman named "Fairchild," Harris, alias G. H. E. Leonard, alias C. Carlin, early today signed a confession at the Niagara street station telling his part in the crime.

NAMES "PAL."

He named "Bill Dunkin," a friend, as the man who fired the actual shot which caused Elwell's death. Elwell was asleep in a chair when killed, Harris said.

Harris' wife, with him at the time he was arrested by Acting Captain Timothy Murray and Detectives Fred Howell and William J. Flynn, is being held by the police while they work on the case.

She is but twenty years of age, and married Harris in St. Catherines, Ontario, in 1916, under the name of G. E. B. Leonard.

Police have established the fact to their satisfaction that Harris was in New York city on the time of the murder.

His wife left him in Syracuse on July 3, 1920, almost a month after the murder was committed.

Although skeptical, the police have been forced to admit that Harris' story has a wealth of detail relative to the actual killing which one not thoroughly familiar with the case would be unable to give. Details of the preliminary transactions during which he alleged he and Dunkin were hired by the Fairchild woman are given.

Harris was arrested by the detectives to answer to a charge of forgery. They say that nearly a year and a half ago while in St. Catherine's he passed a bogus check on Leo Wright of that city.

At the Niagara street station the detectives say that Harris seemed to be ill at ease and Flynn finally asked him to "come clean."

Harris is alleged to have at first denied there was anything else to tell, but Flynn, talking a risk in the dark, asked him: "How about New York?"

The start it gave the prisoner showed the sleuths they were on the right track. A few minutes later Harris is alleged to have broken down and told them that he would "squeal" on his partner in the Elwell murder because the partner had "crossed" him and had cheated him out of the majority of his share of the $5,000 which they were to receive for the crime.

In his statement Harris said that he is twenty-three years old and that his home had been in New York. On the night of June 10 he claims to have been standing in front of the Mills Hotel, 34th street and Seventh avenue, with a man who went by the name of "Bill" and whom he had known for sometime.

WOMAN HIRES PAIR.

It was while they were talking that a chauffeur known to him as "Jerry" drove up with a limousine containing a woman.

"Jerry asked me if we would take a ride with the woman," said Harris in his statement. "We got into the car and drove through Central Park. We stopped near the reservoir. The woman's name was Mrs. Fairchild, she said: 'Boy, I got some real money for you to kill Joseph R. Elwell,' she then said she would meet us at the subway station at 72d street and Broadway."

We met her the next night as arranged and she laid the plans for the murder. This was on the night of June 10.

"She gave Dunkin and myself $50 apiece after we had promised to meet her on the following night.

"We met her on the following night as arranged, June 11, 1920. This time it was in front of the Marie Antoinette Hotel. She told us that Elwell would attend some theatre that night and that she had someone trailing him to see if he went anywhere else after the theatre.

ELWELL ASLEEP IN CHAIR.

"We were to meet her again at the same place at 11:30 p. m. We met her as agreed. Then we had a little luncheon. She then took Dunkin and myself to Elwell's house at about 12:45 o'clock on the morning of June 12, 1920.

"Elwell did not show up until between 2 and 3 a. m. He went upstairs and later returned downstairs again and sat in the armchair in the parlor.

"He then proceeded to reach for mail. He then went to sleep in the chair.

"Dunkin pulled out a revolver from his pocket and fired one shot. I had a Colt thirty-two calibre pistol in my possession, but I didn't do any shooting. The one shot fired by Dunkin killed Mr. Elwell.

"The limousine was waiting for us at 70th street and Central Park West. We rode as far as Broadway and 110th street, where Mrs. Fairchild gave Dunkin and myself $450 each. She swore that she would see us three nights later at Van Cortland street station of the subway at 11 p. m. She did not show up.

"I heard that she had met Dunkin and paid him the balance. I have not met either Mrs. Fairchild or Dunkin since the night of the murder. I do not know where Mrs. Fairchild resides."

ENGAGED AS BOOTLEGGER.

The police later quizzed Harris in an effort to down his story. He was asked innumerable questions relative to small details, but in each case was able to answer them. He told of how Elwell came into the house dressed in evening clothes and went upstairs and changed to pajamas. He told of him reading some mail, but being so sleepy that he went to sleep before he had finished.

Harris came to Lockport about a month ago, the police say, and has been engaged in bootlegging since. It was this reason, Harris told his wife, that caused him to use the name of "C. Carlin, London, Ontario," when registering at the Genesee Hotel. He was afraid that someone would know the name of Leonard.

Mrs. Leonard, as the woman with him calls herself, has been employed on Niagara street. Saturday she was laid off, she says, and has been looking for employment since.

Tuesday afternoon while walking along Main street, near Genesee street, she met her husband. It was eight months since she had seen him. She was very much surprised to meet him in Buffalo. They talked together for a long time and finally went to a moving picture show where they discussed various things for a long time. They decided to try living together again and went to the Genesee Hotel for the night. She says she had no idea where they were going.

The police decided to hold Leonard as she insists on his called, until her husband was taken back to New York or released, depending entirely on what the police from that city wish to do. The fact that she corroborates the statement that Harris was in New York at the time Elwell was killed is holding her, they say.

Harris, at the time he was in New York, was employed in a local office as a clerk. The police communicated the addresses here to the New York police and left them to look up his record there.

"We believe that Harris is implicated in some way or at least can lead us to the men who killed Elwell," declared Detective Howell today. "Several hours of questioning have failed to break down Harris, and we are taking another step in an effort to cause him to straighten some discrepancies."

Former Governor Charles S. Whitman, who has been engaged by District Attorney Swann of New York to try to solve the Elwell murder, this morning called District Attorney Moore, of Buffalo on long distance.

This followed a conclusion of Whitman's part that Harris' story was some weight. Whitman asked District Attorney Moore to arrange to question Harris personally and requested that a personal report be made to him by telephone.

Detective Goes to Buffalo to Question Harris

By International News Service.

New York, April 7.—Detective Sergeant Henry Oswald of the New York police department left here this morning for Buffalo to question Harris, held there after his confession that he and another man killed Joseph Bourne Elwell in his apartment here last June.

Officials of the department, although determined to investigate Harris' story thoroughly, are frankly skeptical. The attitude of these officials was expressed by Inspector John D. Coughlin, chief of the Detective Bureau, who said:

Inspector Coughlin said there were several discrepancies in Harris' story that make them believe he is not telling the truth.

Several detectives were assigned today to run down all angles of Harris' story. Every address he mentioned will be visited, and every effort will be made to find out if his movements can be checked, Edward Rhodes, chauffeur for Elwell, when seen by a reporter today, expressed his belief that Harris was telling the truth.

"I think the confession is straight," he said. "I always thought Elwell was killed by gunmen. I don't know any Mrs. Fairchild. Elwell knew so many women it was impossible for me to keep tabs on them all. He never had me trail them, and the only way I learned their identity was when Elwell called on some other than others. I've always believed this case would break. The police have certainly pestered me enough, and I'm glad to see them get after somebody else."

Elwell's Sister Thinks Harris' Story False

By International News Service.

Ridgewood, N. J., April 7.—Miss Grace Elwell, sister of Joseph R. Elwell, the murdered New York whist king, said today she did not believe there was any truth in the story of Harris as told to Buffalo police.

"I never heard of any Mrs. Fairchild and I do not know of any Roy Harris. I think the man is lying," she said.

Miss Elwell denied a recent statement credited to her to the effect that she believed the authorities knew the identity of her brother's slayer and were shielding the suspected person.

Mrs. Helen Derby Elwell, divorced wife of Elwell, said she had little faith in the confession.

Elwell's Entire Life Mixed Up With Women

The old, tawdry trio—wine, women and song, with women dominant, figured prominently in the investigations of the death of Joseph R. Elwell, noted as a whist expert and New York man about town.

From the time he first made his appearance in the metropolis, up to and even beyond the time of his murder, the name of Elwell was inextricably mixed with those of women.

Society women and queens of the underworld were his constant companions at gay parties during his life. A woman, his housekeeper, discovered his bullet-torn body, and the finger of suspicion was pointed at woman as having caused his death.

Elwell's body was found in a chair in the living room of his handsomely appointed residence at No. 244 West Seventeenth street early on June 11 by his housekeeper, Mrs. Marie Larson, who let herself in with a pass key.

The previous night her employer had been a member of a gay party, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lewisohn, Miss Viola Kraus, formerly the wife of Victor Von Schlegel, and Oscar Ferguson, at dinner at the Ritz-Carlton, and later attended the Ziegfeld Frolic on the New Amsterdam roof.

After leaving the roof garden Elwell left the party and apparently started home alone in a taxicab. He is known to have stopped to buy morning papers.

FEMININE APPAREL.

All further trace of his movements was lost until the discovery of his body, attired in pajamas and dressing gown, seated beside a table on which were a number of opened letters. Search of his sumptuous bachelor apartments revealed many articles of intimate feminine apparel.

It was also learned women had been frequent callers at his home, and that at least two of them were provided with pass keys. It was believed Elwell had a woman caller a few hours before his death, but the police were never able to substantiate this.

Considerable weight was attached in the official investigations to several mysterious telephone calls which Elwell, it was learned, received between 2 and 5 o'clock on the morning of the murder.

There was no weapon near his body, no evidence of a struggle, doors and windows were securely locked, and there were no powder marks or burns to warrant the theory of self-destruction.

It was evident the man was a victim of murder, but although clews pointed strongly toward a woman the police were at a standstill.

Recently it was announced the investigation would be resumed under the direction of former District Attorney Whitman.

Roy Harris' Story of How Elwell Was Killed

"Elwell did not show up until between 2 and 3 a. m. He went upstairs and later returned downstairs again and sat in the armchair in the parlor.

"He then proceeded to reach for mail. He then went to sleep in the chair.

"Dunkin pulled out a revolver from his pocket and fired one shot. I had a Colt 32-calibre pistol in my possession, but I didn't do any shooting. The one shot fired by Dunkin killed Mr. Elwell."—From Harris' confession to Elwell murder case.

Tenant Displays U. S. Flag to Prevent Eviction

The Stars and Stripes are flying from a window in the apartment of James W. O'Brien at No. 119 Mountford street, Back Bay, and double chains on the doors have turned the residence in to a Verdun fortress.

Within O'Brien holds the fort. He defies the landlord, who sent him a notice of eviction two months ago, or any of the landlord's minions to put him out or disturb the banner which he has defiantly flung—Barbara Fritchie style—to the winds.

O'Brien says he is a law-abiding citizen, ready to retreat if the courts so command, but otherwise he will not comply with the eviction order, which he alleges is the result of the organization of a tenants' strike last December.

O'Brien, last December, with eighteen other tenants, started a rent strike, complaining the building was insufficiently heated. The landlord replied the structure was a difficult one to heat. Not so, replied O'Brien, charging the fault lay with the janitor, who besides his janitor duties, bred dogs, rented a saddle horse, acted as a chauffeur, conducted a contracting business and took care of six or more other apartment houses.

The rent, O'Brien says, has been increased from $22 to $46 in the last eighteen months, and when tenants on the first floor draw water, those above must go without. Promised repairs have not been done and O'Brien vows he'll not move until the court makes him, nor pay his rent until the house is repaired. He is reinforced by several other tenants and it's the "landlord's move."

LABOR PROTESTS STATE POLICE ALLIANCE

Making New York Publication Its Official Organ Stirs Union Officials

A stir was caused at the State House and in labor circles today when it was discovered that the Massachusetts State Police Department had allied itself with the "Publicity Bureau for State Police," a New York corporation, and had made the "State Police Magazine," published by the bureau, its "official organ."

Local representatives of the "Publicity Bureau for State Police" admitted that its magazine derives its chief support from industrial corporations in the form of liberal advertisements and subscriptions in bulk, but denied that the magazine or the bureau received any funds, from the State of Massachusetts.

They said the "State Police Magazine" was made the official organ of the Massachusetts State Police last December by authority of Colonel Alfred P. Foote, commissioner of public safety.

Representatives of organized labor today declared that a New York publicity bureau and publication supported by corporate interests should not be made the official press agent or organ of any State department of Massachusetts without specific authority from the Legislature or the Governor and Council.

Colonel Foote, commissioner of Public Safety, said:

"I think I did write that the State Police Magazine would be considered the official organ of our department, but there may be some question just what an official organ means. The publishers said they would gladly print any news concerning our department and we have sent them items from time to time. I simply felt that it was a good medium of publicity. That was all."

HOUSEHOLD CARES NOT FOR THIS WOMAN

All this applies only to women in business, Miss Van Hoesen explained. When a stenographer pays her mother board she has discharged her duty toward the household.

PAINFUL OPERATION SAVED DOG'S LIFE

Washington, April 7.—For the past year "Lion," a big shaggy animal, half sheep dog and half St. Bernard, had been wasting away. Examination showed that he was slowly strangling to death. A fish line, which had been tied about his neck apparently when a puppy, was the cause. The line was removed painfully, the flesh that had grown around it.

CAT MOTHERS MOUSE WITH HER OWN KITTENS

Lewiston, Me., April 7.—The unique spectacle of a cat mothering a young mouse with her own litter of kittens is causing some astonishment here. The happy family was discovered comfortably installed in the bottom of a rain barrel in the store of Charles Dube. The mouse appeared quite content with its unusual foster mother.

MRS. LEEDS AND STILLMAN QUARRELLED OVER 'SOCIETY' GIRL

SHAM OF TRIANGLE EXPOSED

Banker's Relations With Mrs. Leeds Revealed by Servant's Blundering Tongue

New York, April 7.—James A. Stillman, president of the National City Bank, armed his wife, formerly "Fifi" Potter, with the information regarding Mrs. Florence Leeds in a period of indiscretion when he flouted all the conventions of his set. This much was learned today as the latest development in the Stillman drama.

It was related that three luxurious establishments were maintained at the same time by the banker. It was in the Summer of 1919. Mr. Stillman then was living as "Franklin Harold Leeds" with Mrs. Florence Leeds, in "Rest Court," Stonybrook, Long Island. He was maintaining his wife and children on a lavish scale in the Stillman Summer camp, St. Illman's at Three Rivers, Quebec, and the "woman of society" the third mentioned in the complicated divorce action, was living expensively in a large hotel in Manhattan where she was visited by the banker.

A SPECTACULAR QUARREL.

There is declared to have been a spectacular quarrel between Mr. Stillman and Mrs. Leeds over his alleged attentions to the "woman of society," described as a "decided brunette," possibly of foreign extraction and beautiful. Following the quarrel Stillman ceased to be seen with the third woman, he cut her off completely, it is said.

And at this important period of the Stillman history, the banker, it is revealed, entertained business and social friends at "Rest Court." They would motor down from New York as his guests, men and women, husbands and wives bearing names noted in the worlds of business and society.

Mr. Stillman—and this information is in the hands of Mrs. Stillman's lawyers, who plan to bring it forth in hearings before Referee Gleason—introduced his guests to Mrs. Leeds simply as "my friend, Mrs. Leeds."

A REAL FAUX PAS.

The banker's own intimates thought nothing of that. They called him "Mr. Stillman" and her "Mrs. Leeds" and thought no more about it.

But one day the sham was exposed. Some servant called Mr. Stillman "Mr. Leeds." There was a raising of eyebrows and a lull in conversation. It was an embarrassing moment and then guests sought their wraps, called their motors, made their adieux as gracefully as possible and sped back to their homes—and to Mrs. Stillman.

The understanding is that Mrs. Leeds was snubbed by the departing guests and thought she'd better take it for it. "Rest Court," it is said, was resetful only in name for certain hours.

But the most important feature of the situation, as judged by later developments, was that Mrs. Stillman had been the guests of Mr. Stillman, or many of them, went straight to his wife and told her of the experience. They are understood to have resented extremely the deception the banker is asserted to have practised on them.

THEN WIFE KNEW.

That was how Mrs. Stillman first learned about Mrs. Leeds and that is how she knew just where to go to get definite information when she was persuaded by her friends and advisers to fight her husband's suit for divorce with his own weapons.

It is not expected, however, that any of these social and business friends of the banker will be called as witnesses. "To call them hardly appears to be necessary, does it?" said a friend and adviser of Mrs. Stillman today.

There also were hints today that another feminine figure of importance in the case is a parlor maid supposed to have been "planted" in the Stillman place at Pleasantville, N. Y., by the banker. Mrs. Stillman's adherents are convinced that it was she who stole the letters written to Mrs. Stillman by Fred Beavis, Indian guide, named by Stillman in his suit.

The parlor maid is now missing. Investigators for Mrs. Stillman are searching for her in this country and in urope.

Stories Repudiated by Girl, to Save Father, Are Read to Longe Jury

Three photographs of Madeline Longe, fifteen-year-old daughter of Peter W. Longe, on trial at Rutland, Vt., for the murder of Owen Hayes. Also a photograph of Longe.

Rutland, Vt., April 7.—The stories which Madeline Longe, the fifteen-year-old girl, daughter of Peter W. Longe, told to the State authorities, which led to his arrest on a charge of slaying Owen Hayes in Fairhaven last October 1, and which she now repudiates in her dramatic effort to save her father from the electric chair, were read to the jury by Mrs. Catherine Nichols, secretary of Attorney-General Archibald.

Mrs. Nichols read the accounts from stenographic notes made at the time that the young girl first told of her father's alleged connections with the brutal crime. The reading followed a similar reviewal of alleged admissions of guilt by her father.

On these notes the State bases its hope of smashing the girl's testimony given on the stand, when in a heroic attempt to save her father she branded herself as a falsifier.

ADMITS ILLICIT LOVE.

Coolly and without apparent emotion Madelina not only admitted time and again that she lied, but also acknowledged an illicit love for Louis Bishop, the thirty-eight-year-old father of three children, at whose prompting she now declares she told the stories which led to her parent's present predicament.

She described, without a trace of embarrassment, her love for Bishop. She told of going away with him on the day that Hayes' body was pulled from the Cashman river, and told of her life with him, during the successive month, when the couple lived together in several Massachusetts cities.

She got her instructions what to say to connect her father with the crime from Bishop, when the two were staying together at Athol, Mass., she testified.

"What did he tell you to say to your father?" she was asked by Attorney Preston, her father's counsel.

"He told me to tell papa that if he was arrested to say that he was present with three others at the murder, but did not have anything to do with it."

DELIVERED MESSAGE.

Under re-direct testimony, in answer to questions by Attorney General Archibald, she stated that she came back to Fairhaven and delivered Bishop's message.

She was interrogated by the attorney general:

Q.—What did your father say to that? A.—He wanted to know what reason I had for that.

Q.—He wanted to know what reason you had for telling him that Bishop told you that? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Was that all he said about it? A.—He wanted to know what I thought, if anyone was going to be arrested for it.

SAYS FATHER WAS INNOCENT.

Q.—When Bishop told you that and told you to tell it, about your father, you knew it was a lie, didn't you? A.—I didn't know whether it was a lie or not.

Q.—You didn't know? A.—I knew my father didn't have anything to do with it.

Q.—Didn't you, when you saw Ernest Lovell there, know that he was the one that told you to tell this? A.—No, I did not.

Q.—You said down here at the Berwick House, didn't you, that Ernest Lovell told you about that, didn't you say that? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—You said there and in Fairhaven that Ernest Lovell told you that he and Hazdwell and Duffany and your father killed Hayes and robbed him? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—When did you think of telling that? A.—When did I think of it? Well, I don't remember.

Q.—You can't tell anything about it, can you? A.—Yes, what I know.

Q.—Can you tell within a week or two weeks when you thought of telling that story that Lovell told you that? A.—No, I can't.

ADMITS TELLING LIE.

Q.—Did you ever say, or didn't you say, both here in Rutland and at Fairhaven, that your father told you that it was three foreigners that were with him? A.—Yes.

Q.—What suggested that to you? A.—I can't tell you.

Q.—Why that wasn't a story that Bishop told you, was it? A.—No sir, he didn't have a thing to do with that.

Q.—Who told you to say that it was three foreigners? A.—Not anybody that I know of in particular.

Q.—That story then originated in your own mind, did it? A.—Yes.

Q.—And didn't you stick to that story right down to the time you were confronted by your father down here at the Berwick? A.—Yes.

Q.—And then you admitted that was false, didn't you? A.—Yes, sir, it was.

Q.—And then you at the same time admitted that the story about Lovell, Hazdell and Duffany was false? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you not admit it was false? A.—Yes.

CORRESPONDS WITH BISHOP.

Q.—Then, you were telling falsehoods right along? A.—Only when I said that my father—What Lovell told me.

Q.—And when did he tell you that? A.—My father didn't tell me that.

Q.—When you told that your father told you that it was Lovell and Duffany and you lied, did you? A.—When I said that, yes.

Under further questioning the girl testified that she has been in continuous correspondence with Bishop since his confinement in the asylum; admitted that she addresses him in her letters as "Dearest Louis" and received similar endearing salutations from him.

TELLS HAYS OF HUB'S POSTAL CONDITIONS

Kelley, Head of Clerks' Local, Urges Overhauling of General Postoffice

Needs of the postal clerks of Boston were laid before Postmaster-General Hays by John A. Kelley, president of Local 100, National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, at a special conference in Washington, to which the local postal official had been summoned by the new chief of the department.

The summons and conference were in direct line with the policy adopted by Mr. Hays when he named office to "humanise the service" and to "get in personal touch with the employes."

Kelley presented a complete report of local service conditions as they apply to the clerks. Among other things he urged a weekly pay system instead of the present irregular method of payment, by which postal clerks are deprived of the ability of taking advantage of cash sales and are forced to carry accounts at stores.

He also took up with the postmaster-general the urgent necessity for making improvements in the sanitary and working conditions in the general postoffice building here. He pointed out that the building has outgrown its usefulness, that ventilation and light are poor, causing eye strain and other ills among the clerks. Postmaster Baker, he declared, and other local officials have done their best to remedy this state of affairs, but without much success.

An early mailing campaign was also suggested by Kelley, who pointed out that 75 per cent. of the mail is now dumped into the postoffices between five and seven o'clock at night.

Kelley also discussed with the new postmaster-general the special clerk grievance, whereby many special clerks, under arbitrary rulings of the former postmaster-general, Burleson, have lost the ratings they held.

TO ELECT DELEGATES TO A. A. R. I. R. CONVENTION

St. Andrew's Council, American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic, will meet tonight in Arboretum Court Hall, Forest Hills, to elect delegates to the national convention in Chicago, April 15 and 16. Final arrangements will also be made for the forthcoming whist party in aid of the Irish Relief Fund. The council has already forwarded $100 and expects to double this amount.

NEW YORK REALLY DRY UNDER NEW LAW

New York, April 7.—For the first time since the prohibition law went into effect, New York city today took on the aspect of a really dry municipality. Police Commissioner Enright issued instructions to every member of the police force to see that the federal prohibition law is enforced. This was in compliance with a State law which became effective Tuesday night, compelling all local authorities to enforce the federal act.

ARGUMENTS IN BIG BANK SUIT HEARD

Defendants Named by Willett Ask That $15,000,000 Case Be Dropped

Argument on the demurrer filed by George Mayberry, attorney for the nineteen defendants named by George F. Willett of Norwood, in his $15,000,000 suit, opened today in the Dedham Superior Court, before Judge Walter F. Hall.

The demurrer contains more than 100 separate counts, the gist of them being that the plaintiff has no ground fo rhis suit, inasmuch as no fraud was committed by the defendants alleged by the complaint.

Among the others named in the suit by Willett, filed March 7 last, as asignee and trustee for Willett, Sears & Co., are Daniel G. Wing, as president of the First National Bank of Boston; Robert F. Herrick, Kidder, Peabody & Co., and the Chase National Bank of New York. Sherman L. Whipple and B. B. Jones represent the plaintiff.

In his formal complaint Willett alleges that owing to war conditions he was forced to borrow between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000 in addition to their regular loans.

He charges that a syndicate of bankers was formed to care for this loan, and that part of the fraud alleged to have been committed consisted in the sale to Kidder, Peabody & Co. and F. S. Moseley Company shares in certain companies controlled by the Willett concern. Willett also charges conspiracy to ruin Willett & Sears.

BODY OF NANTASKET VICTIM IS IDENTIFIED

The body of the man found in the water off Nantasket Beach Tuesday afternoon was identified as that of Frank Nichols, 55 years old, a machinist employed on Shawmut avenue, Boston. He left a family in Fitchburg. Medical Examiner John A. Peterson of Hingham reported that death was due to accidental drowning.

BEVERLY FIRE DESTROYS 40 AUTOS

General Alarm Rung in for $40,000 Blaze in Highland Avenue Garage

Beverly, April 7.—A general alarm was rung in for a fire which, starting in the garage of Corlile & Perkins, Highland avenue, threatened to spread to the rest of the city. Several wooden dwellings caught from flying sparks, but were saved. The damage was estimated at $40,000.

Forty automobiles were burned in the garage, despite the efforts of employes of the garage to save them. Sparks set afire the dwellings of Herbert Woodbury and James Bernstein, but these minor blazes were put out before nightfall.

621,000,000, BUSHELS IN WHEAT CROP FORECAST

Washington, April 7.—The average condition of Winter wheat on April 1, was 91 per cent, of normal against 75.8 on April 1, 1920 and 83.6 the average condition for the past ten years on April 1, the crop reporting board of the Bureau of Crop Estimates announced today. The board forecasts a production of about 621,000,000 bushels which compares with 577,763,000 bushels the estimated production in 1920. The average condition of rye on April 1 was 90.2 per cent, of normal against 86.8 on April 1, 1920 and 88.4 the average condition for the past ten years on April 1.

Joseph McBrien, former exalted ruler of Lynn Lodge of Elks, has entered suit for divorce against Alice F. McBrien, daughter of a former leather and counter manufacturer in Lynn, on charges of cruel and abusive treatment. James W. Sullivan of Lynn, attorney for Mr. McBrien, filed the papers in the Superior Court at Salem.

Mrs. McBrien is the daughter of the late William LaCroix of Lynn and was married to Mr. McBrien October 3, 1906.

SAUGUS TREASURER OFF; TEACHERS WITHOUT PAY

Town Treasurer H. Dwight Bisbee of Saugus, who is also an undertaker, has gone to New Hampshire to bring a body to that town, and school teachers town employes and others who had money coming to them from the town treasury were not paid off as previously planned. Mr. Bisbee has no clerk because the town refused to appropriate money for that purpose. Last week the school teachers went on their vacations without their money because the treasurer had no clerk and was unable to make up the pay roll.

Facts and Figures in British Strike

A million and a quarter miners are now idle.

A "triple Alliance" strike would add:

500,000 (transport workers);

500,000 railwaymen;

35,000 locomotive engineers, who have a separate union.

This would put the total of actual strikers at 2,285,000.

Approximately two million and a quarter workers in other industries would be automatically thrown out of work.

Thus a "Triple Alliance" strike call would result in more than 3,000,000 workers being idle.

MEXICO TO DISCUSS OIL WITH AMERICA

Mexico City, April 7.—It is reported that General Obregon, Mexican military commander at Tampico, will soon go to the United States on the invitation of President Harding to discuss Mexican problems. The petroleum situation, it is said, will be particularly discussed. General Pollaes and the President are said to be personal friends.

JITNEY MEN WIN IN FIRST WORCESTER CLASH

Worcester, April 7.—George T. Baker and Henry Carter, operating jitneys between Millbury and Worcester, were discharged in local court by Judge Utley, where they were arraigned on charges of operating without a proper license, winning a victory in the first clash of jitney men with the Worcester Consolidated Street Railway.

LLOYD GEORGE BREAKS WITH STRIKERS

Declares No Government Could Accede to Demands of Coal Miners

By International News Service.

London, April 7.—"No government could possibly accede to the challenge of the Miners' Federation," Premier Lloyd George told the miners' executive committee at a conference today, the abrupt ending of which signified a complete break in all negotiations for a settlement of the coal strike and brought back the menace of a tremendous national industrial upheaval.

The premier's utterance was quoted in an official communique this afternoon. He admitted having been mistaken in his hope that an understanding had been reached. The miners' stand, he said, made this utterly impossible. They refused to guarantee continuance of pumping at the mines.

ACCEPTS CHALLENGE.

The communique quotes Lloyd George as having told the miners: "I admit I was completely wrong in my belief that there was something we could clear up.

"I now understand the federation's challenge. It is more grave and deep and more fundamental than I had realized. No government could possibly accede to it."

The miners themselves stand pat. Their executive committee will not meet again till Friday morning.

Meanwhile the disastrous flooding of the mines continues. Military protection of the pumps appears inevitable. The Cabinet is in session discussing that step.

RAILWAY MEN MEET.

The railway men's representatives convened for a momentous meeting this afternoon. At their headquarters word was given out that the government's course "means strike."

The transport workers already have declared their readiness to back the miners to the limit.

A triple alliance strike would mean absolute nation-wide paralysis, with more than 5,000,000 workers idle.

At noon today several local increasing violence is reported. Intimidation of volunteer workers, especially pumping crews, by mobs of strikers accompanied by women and children, is growing everywhere.

Columns of motor cycle troops and dispatch riders in full war equipment left Aldershot today on secret assignments.

HUGHES DENIES JAP RIGHT TO ISLAND OF YAP

Washington, April 7—The unqualified assertion that the Allied and Associated Powers can make no valid disposition of Germany's overseas possession without the assent of the United States is made in identical notes to Great Britain, Italy and France, made public by Secretary of State Hughes.

A similar note, but with "additional paragraphs relating to previous correspondence" was also sent to Japan. The text of the Japanese note was not revealed.

The general trend of the Hughes note is the same as that addressed to Great Britain by Secretary Colby, declaring that, treaty of Versailles or no treaty, the United States has "inseparable rights" in the German overseas possessions and in mandated territory.

U. S. SUSTAINED BY TREATY.

Secretary Hughes, however, goes further and more elaborately in a legal argument to substantiate the contentions of this government. He even goes so far as to claim the position of the United States is in fact sustained by the treaty of Versailles itself.

Incidentally the note carried with it a heretofore unpublished letter from former President Woodrow Wilson to the International Communications Conference, disclaiming that the Allies and associated powers had notice of his reservations against an exclusive mandate for Japan over the island of Yap.

While the white argument revolves about the question of the right of the United States to share in the island of Yap, it is made plain that the basic principles laid down by Secretary Hughes refer to all mandate territory which formerly belonged to Germany.

RIGHTS NEVER CEDED.

After discussing as an incontrovertible fact that the United States as co-victor in the war, established its rights to participate in the disposition of mandate territory equally with other nations, the note says:

"The United States has never vested either the supreme council or the League of Nations with any authority to bind the United States or to act in its behalf."

It adds that the "rights accruing to the United States through the victory in which it had participated, could not be regarded as in any way ceded or surrendered to Japan or to other nations, except by treaty, and no such treaty has been made."

ALLIES USURPED BENEFITS.

It is pointed out as a legal argument and one of fact, that the treaty of Versailles itself provides that Germany renounces in favor of the principal allied and associated powers all her rights and title over her overseas possessions, and that the United States is one of those powers. The deduction made by Mr. Hughes, from this fact he states in this way:

"Thus not only could the government of Japan derive strength from the Treaty of Versailles or from any discussions preliminary thereto, but the terms of the treaty confirm the position of the government of the United States."

In other words, the German grants of rights, which were to the allied and associated powers as a whole, have been administered by Great Britain, Japan, Italy and France for their own use and benefit contrary to the plain purpose of the Versailles Treaty, the note indicates.

MANDATES INEFFECTIVE.

The note also points out that the very draft convention for the mandates over the Pacific Islands north and south of the Equator recognized "the right and interest of the United States and the fact that the proposed action could not be effective without the agreement of the United States as one of the principal allied and associated powers."

This declaration follows:

"It is manifest that the League of Nations was without any authority to bind the United States, and that the confirmation of the mandate in question, and the definition of its terms, by the council of the League of Nations, in December, 1920, cannot be regarded as having efficacy with the United States."

The strongest language in the note is used when Secretary Hughes points out that as no right of the United States has been ceded by treaty with Japan or any other nation, "this government must insist that it has not lost its right or interest as it existed prior to any action of the supreme council or of the League of Nations and cannot recognize the alienation of the Island of Yap, or the validity, to Japan."

The note concludes with the statement that the United States "relies confidently upon the sense of justice of Japan and the other nations concerned" the disposal of the matter in the just interest of all."

Wealthy Girl Studies Life in Reformatory

Stamford, Ct., April 7.—Thomas Mott Osborne, who went to Sing Sing as a prisoner to study the conditions of the men in the establishment, has a rival in Miss Elizabeth Lanier, daughter of Charles D. Lanier, wealthy publisher.

She revealed that she spent a week last February in Bedford Reformatory, New York, with the double purpose of making a sociological study and taking some sunshine into the lives of the girls confined there.

She urged that if more people took the trouble to make friends with girls in such circumstances much good would be accomplished.

WIFE OF STOKES WILL CHARGE CONSPIRACY

Will Bare Her Life to Refute Statements Made by Hotel Man

New York, April 7—New sensations were promised in the suit of W. E. D. Stokes against his wife for divorce when the proceedings were resumed before Justice Finch today.

It is now the inning of Mrs. Helen Stokes and Martin Littleton, her counsel, declared today that he has evidence to show a huge conspiracy against the young wife of the financier and hotel owner.

The first witness scheduled for the defense was Edgar T. Wallace, California oil man, whose bachelor apartments in New York have contributed so many spicy items to the testimony already taken.

Mr. Wallace cut short his honeymoon, left his bride in Los Angeles and hurried East to deny the charges involving himself and Mrs. Stokes. He was to testify that he has never seen Mrs. Stokes between the date of her marriage and the present time. Before her marriage he knew her only casually. On the dates he is alleged to have entertained the millionaire's wife in his apartments he will assert he was absent in the interior of Mexico seeking oil.

Following Wallace's testimony, the witnesses who have testified for Stokes will be cross-examined and then Mrs. Stokes will tell of the treatment of her husband toward her and episodes involving other women. Then Mr. Littleton will attempt to prove a conspiracy against Mrs. Stokes to deprive her of a dower share of the millionaire's estate.

Serves an Hour in Jail Quits With $1,000

Chicago, April 7.—Edward N. Olsen, aged mail clerk charged with stealing a novelty doll from the mail, found that the wheels of justice grind more speedily than tradition says.

He received his sentence, served it and found $1,000 lawyer's fee returned to him all in the brief course of two hours.

When he confessed at his first hearing to stealing the doll and paying a lawyer $1,000 to clear him, Judge K. M. Landis blinked and ordered him taken to the Psychopathic Hospital.

"Looks like a case for clemency," suggested the district attorney when the hospital report was read today.

The Judge ordered him to serve an hour in the custody of the marshall and persuaded the attorney to give back the fee.

BOYS SET PLAYMATE AFIRE WITH GASOLINE

Anderson, Ill., April 7.—Ferrell Ridgeway, nine years old, is in a serious condition at his home in the village of Forida from burns received when playmates drenched his clothing with gasoline and set fire to it. The boy had just fallen into a pond and his companions thought it would be a good joke, they said, to "dry him out" with a gasoline fire.

'L' PROBERS STILL SEEK COUNSEL

Legislators Are Unable to Report Progress After Three Meetings

Efforts of the special Legislative committee probing charges of misconduct by the solons of 1918 and 1919 in connection with the Boston Elevated bill, to find counsel to conduct the State's case, are still without result.

Three times the committee met and dissolved without having made definite progress. Following their last meeting Chairman Griswold stated that the committee had agreed upon counsel, but the latter had not decided whether or not he would act.

Members of the committee declined to name the men agreed upon as counsel. Nor would they disclose the nature of papers transmitted to them by Bank Commissioner Allen.

The executive council voted, after much debate, to abandon its investigation of the 1918-1919 legislators in favor of the legislative committee probers. Lieutenant Governor Alvah T. Fuller and Councilor William J. Foley opposed the withdrawal of the council from the investigation.

ISSUE CLOUDED BY KETCHUM, SAYS HORGAN

A. A. R. I. R. Official Cites British Leaders in Defence of Irish Probe

"Editor, Boston American:

"Our attention is called to the statement made by Commander-in-Chief Ketchum in the House of Representatives of the old Bay State on April 5. We are sorry that this injudicious and absurd criticism of the report on the atrocities in Ireland by the Committee of One Hundred, was made by a Veteran of the Civil War. He apparently has forgotten the attitude of England towards the United States in that attempt to divide this Union.

"The ancestry of Villard is not under consideration any more than that of Ketchum himself. Discussion about those who are to be called simply 'American or Irish or English or English American' merely clouds the issue. They should be reserved for another occasion.

"That the fair minded and just Americans may properly appreciate the value of the report of the Committee of One Hundred so unlike the Bryce ex-parte report on the alleged atrocities in Belgium—we call attention of the public to the condemnation on English cruelty in Ireland by the Archbishop of Canterbury, ex-Premier Asquith, Arthur Henderson, M. P., William Archer, critic and playwright; Mrs. Virginia Crawford, General Sir Edward Strickland, General Thompson, and the letter of protest signed by seventeen Anglican Bishops, the latter signed by nine Bishops and heads of the principal non-conformist churches in Great Britain, addressed to Lloyd George and the Irish Secretary, General Henry Lawson, Henry W. Nevinson, John H. Barlow, Lord Benninck, M. P., Robert Lynd and Sir Herbert Samuel; and to written confirmations to be found in the Westminster Gazette, the London Nation, the Daily Mail; the Manchester Guardian Weekly, the New Witness, the London Daily News, the London Daily Telegram, the Evening News of London, the London Morning Post, the report of Mr. Fegan, Registration Secretary of the Workers' Committee, the British Labor Commission of Dr. Kerr of Belfast, report of the Women's International League, report of the British Branch of the Society of Friends and the Toronto Statesman. THE U. S. ROYAL CORD

A famous tire—a famous tread. Acknowledged among motorists and dealers alike as the world's foremost example of Cord tire building. Always delivering the same repeated economy, tire after tire, and season after season.

The stripe around the sidewalls is registered as a trade-mark in the U. S. Patent Office.

Get the Tire Service Your Manufacturer Intended You Should

EVERY car owner knows what a difference it makes whether he gets a fresh live tire—or one that has stood around on some dealer's shelf for a season or two.

Odds and ends, a job lot of this and that, are just as much a handship to the dealer as to his customers.

Nobody wants them—or will take them if he knows it.

The dealer does not like to sell them, but he has them on his hands—and there you are.

• • •

What the dealer wants is a quick moving line of tires and tubes.

Tires and tubes that come to you fresh out of the factory—alive with the service the maker put into them.

You see now why so many dealers are concentrating on the one line of tires sure to meet the wishes of ninety-five per cent of their customers.

Why they are doing away with a little of this, a little of that, and the odd lots that stick on the shelves.

In short, the progressive dealer is looking for tires that will meet his own sense of responsibility to his customers—his careful selection of tires and his careful handling of them in his store.

Concentration on United States Tires and Tubes is the business policy of thousands of tire dealers today—and hundreds more are coming to this great and dependable line every month.

• • •

The United States Rubber Company has always been interested in seeing that you get the right service out of your tires.

It selects its dealers with that end in view.

It builds a line of tires on which a dealer can concentrate and still have the variety, to meet the needs of every individual car owner.

A complete and finished line, for all roads and in all sizes. At prices consistent with what car owners have learned to look for in high-quality tires.

• • •

Trade with them.

Get the advantage of their superior purchasing power and their quicker turn-over.

It is one sure way to get the fresh, live tire service the maker intended you to get.

CAMPBELL ONCE MORE ATTACKS GERARD

Hints Former Ambassador Seeks New York Irish Vote in Coming Mayoralty Fight

Francis A. Campbell, clerk of the Suffolk County Superior Civil Court, who protested ineffectually against the appearance of James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany, at the meeting in behalf of the Irish relief fund, today answered the reply of Chairman James J. Phelan of the American Committee for Relief in Ireland.

Phelan said in his letter to Campbell that the work of the committee was solely humanitarian, and that protests would not feed, clothe nor shelter the deserving. He added that the committee would welcome Campbell's contribution.

In his statement today, Campbell said in part: "The only part of my protest that Gerard denied was that which referred to 'the suspicion that he had betrayed Roger Casement into the hands of the British government.'

"He says in effect that this statement is a lie and that it has been circulated for years by sneaks and traitors. He certainly cannot accuse me of being a sneak as I have publicly, and I believe, opportunely, issued a statement under my own signature. The calling of names is not a logical argument.

"Mr. Gerard says that this Casement story was started by an American who was a spy in the German government employ and that he, Gerard, tried to take the passports away from this American citizen. Why should Mr. Gerard, the ambassador from America to Germany, want to take away the passports of an American citizen because he was a German spy, when we were not at war with Germany and supposed to be neutral? Has not an American the right to sell his labor as others did their goods, wares and merchandise?

"Another question which arises is, why did Mr. Gerard wait four or five years for an opportunity to deny the Casement story? Is it because they are grooming him for Mayor of New York city and the Irish vote is seen in the offing?

Girl Will Not Compromise $10,000 Kissing Suit

Miss Eleanor A. Dwyer of Roxbury.

Miss Eleanor A. Dwyer of No. 189 Calumet street, Roxbury, will allow nothing to halt her suit for $10,000 damages against James H. Henderson, Brookline real estate man, for injuries she says she sustained while struggling to avoid his kisses.

"There will be no compromise in this case," she declared today. "I am fighting for the right of working women and girls to decent treatment at the hands of men in office, plant and factory. Too many men seem to believe that working girls do not merit the same courtesy they are willing to pay the home woman. I mean to do what I can to break down that idea, whether I win this suit or not."

BABY'S BODY FOUND WITH HEAD NEARLY CUT OFF

Beverly, April 7.—The dead body of a newly born infant with its head nearly severed from its body was found in the fork of a tree by J. B. Bradstreet of No. 8776 Cabot street. The body was wrapped in a towel and had been placed in a student's bag. Chief of Police Louis D. Weber is investigating.

METHUEN MAN ACCUSED OF WOUNDING TWO

Methuen, April 7.—In an argument over the financial affairs of their organization, Phillip Grosso, prominent Pleasant Valley resident, pulled a revolver, the police allege, and fired three shots at Peter Decesare of No. 328 Merrimac street and one shot at Arthur McCluer of No. 9 Arcadia street. Both men are at the Lawrence General Hospital. Grosso was bound over to the grand jury on a charge of assault to murder.

HANNIGAN RAPS MOTIVES OF HIS CRITICS

Charges Exploitation of Depositors; Justifies Medford Real Estate Sales

John K. Hannigan, liquidating agent of the Prudential Trust Company, hit back at the critics of his office today by the counter charge that the so-called committees of depositors and people, are being exploited by persons who really have no interest in their welfare but have ulterior motives behind their activities.

"Any criticism made of the liquidation agent or the commissioner connected with the sale of the real estate or personal property of the Prudential Trust Company, is a criticism of the Supreme Judicial Court under whose orders the liquidation agent and commissioner are acting.

"The true representative of the creditors in both departments of the bank and their best friend is the liquidation agent who has no other object or interest except to protect them.

"I see I am criticised for selling the bank property for a high figure. I ask was it for me to sell this bank property for less than I could get for it?

"These committees are working against their own best interests and injuring themselves.

"When the bank held the Medford property the relations between me and the tenants was one of the most agreeable sort. Rents were not raised. The liquidation agent knew the president of the Tenants' League as the bank's representative. Tenants paid promptly. In the course of his duties the liquidation agent found it necessary to dispose of the property. That was done to the best advantage of bank and of its depositors.

"What has been since done relative to that property, the liquidation agent is not concerned with and has nothing to do with it."

NURSE SKEELS TO APPEAR IN PLAY

Lawrence, April 7.—For the first time since her acquittal in the poison murder case of Miss Florence Gay, Mrs. Bessie Mae (Skeels) Lundgren, former circumstantial and nurse, will appear in public as leading lady in a performance to be given in Bradlee Hall, Ballardvale, Friday evening, April 15. The play in which she will take part is "Aaron Slick of Pumpkin Crick," and the proceeds will be devoted to the financial interests of Ballardvale Lodge, I. O. O. F.

IRISH RELIEF RALLY IN COLUMBIA ROAD

The committee of the North Dorchester district of the American Committee for Relief in Ireland have arranged for a mass meeting at the William E. Russell School, Columbia Road, Edward Everett Square tonight, at which the Rev. Roland D. Sawyer, Congregational Minister of Ware, member of the Legislature, will be the principal speaker. There will also be a representative from the headquarters of the American committee. John Merton of Dorchester will preside and an excellent concert program has been arranged.

WOMEN ASK HARDING TO PROMOTE PEACE

Washington, April 7. — President Harding was urged today by a committee representing the Women's Peace Society, an organization with members in the United States, Europe and Mexico, to call an international conference on disarmament. A memorial was presented to the President by Mrs. Charles Edward Russell, chairman of the committee.

The President indicated that he will take no precipitate action with regard to disarmament, Mrs. Russell stated, following the conference.

Quickly Regains Strength After Gland Treatment

Run-Down for 15 Years—Animal Gland Tablets Work Wonders in Short Time

"After being weak, nervous and run-down generally for the past fifteen years, and having tried dozens of tonics and medicines with little or no benefit, I can truthfully state that Glandex Compound (gland extracts in tablet form) has helped me wonderfully, even though I have been taking it for only a few weeks."

This is the remarkable statement made by Mrs. Samuel E. Daily, of 25 Clinton Street, Cambridge, Mass., when questioned the other day regarding her experience with Glandex Compound, which has excited so much interest lately through the results that it is bringing wherever used.

"Every year I kept getting weaker and weaker," continued Mrs. Daily, "until finally it seemed that I did not have an ounce of strength left in my body. I was so weak I could hardly raise my hands to fix my hair. When I went shopping, I would scarcely have strength left to get home. I didn't walk—I simply dragged one foot after the other.

"In addition I was frightfully nervous. The least little thing would frighten and excite me, so that sometimes my hands would tremble like a leaf.

"My appetite deserted me completely. Nothing tasted good. I lost so much weight that friends who hadn't seen me for a long time could hardly believe that I was the same person. I used to have terrible fits of the 'blues' and was often on the point of bursting into tears for no reason at all."

Improvement in Few Days

"Then one day, a few weeks ago, I visited my cousin in Malden, and she recommended me to try Glandex Compound. That very day I bought my first bottle, and only a few days later I began to notice an improvement. This improvement has increased ever since, so that now I am getting stronger and stronger every day. My nervousness is fast disappearing and my appetite is splendid. All my friends tell me that I look 100 per cent. better than I used to."

Amazing Results Everywhere

The reason so many of us grow old at forty, and the reason men and women become enfeebled and run-down is because our ductless glands which supply a vital secretion necessary to the proper building of our billions of muscle and nerve cells, become unable to furnish their work so to build them up, what could be more natural than to go to the itself and use extracts from the glands of healthy and vigorous young animals to supply the substance needed? This principle in itself is not new—organic extracts from animals has been used for years in the treatment of indigestion.

Glandex Compound contains extracts from the glands of healthy sheep and cattle, combined with iron and other blood-building and tonic elements, the result being results that are entirely satisfactory in a very few days as the money will be refunded. Glandex Compound is sold by practically all drug stores.

The Boston Typothetae is standing for

The American Plan in Industry

If this country is ever to get back to normally prosperous times, industries must have PRODUCTION.

The members of this organization, and others who believe in these principles, are standing firm for a 48-hour week, the open shop, and maintained production, in the face of the demands of the unions for a 44-hour week and necessarily decreased production, union control, and their present strike to maintain high printing costs.

Craftsmen who believe in the American Plan in Industry can apply to the Boston Typothetae headquarters, 176 Federal Street, Boston, with the assurance of good treatment and first-class working conditions.

Industrial concerns, buyers of printing, can go to any concern listed below with absolute confidence and knowledge that by so doing they are supporting the real American Plan in Industry—right here in New England, where the History of this Country started.

JAILED SAILORS TERRORIZED AZORES TOWN

41 Mutineers of the Manoa Held for Bail, Indulged in Orgies for Days

Providence, R. I., April 7.—The forty-one members of the crew of the Canadian steamship liner Manoa, who are alleged to have robbed the stores of the ship and destroyed mail pouches, were arraigned before United States Commissioner Archibald C. Matteson here. The men were taken from the Britannia of the Fabre Line, which arrived at the State Pier. They were brought to this city from Horta, Azores Islands, after their arrest had been caused by the American consul there.

Stories of wild orgies aboard the ship in Horta are told by some of the men. While it has not been definitely determined how the mutiny came about, it is understood that the trouble started after seven of the crew robbed the ship's cargo of a large supply of liquor.

TERRIFIED THE TOWN.

Investigations by Special Agent Thomas J. Callaghan of the Department of Justice and by United States Marshal John J. Richards show that some of the men crawled down ventilators on the vessel and robbed its food supply, while on one occasion they tore down a partition so that they could have easier access to the larder.

After the vessel became laid up at Horta because of a broken propeller shaft, it is said that the men for several nights terrified the town. It is declared they cut uniforms off of officers and destroyed much property. Fights among themselves were numerous and the ship's surgeon, it is said, was kept constantly busy patching up the wounded ones.

Officers of the Manoa asked aid from the civil authorities and after the ship's supply of liquor gave out and the men became normal they were placed under arrest. They were confined in a barn for fifty days before they were put aboard the Britannia, they say.

ALL PLEAD NOT GUILTY.

Throughout the afternoon officials grilled them trying to get the real story of the affair. The majority of the crew are Chinese, Spanish and Portuguese who speak only a smattering of English. Little was accomplished.

United States District Attorney Peter C. Cannon, after reviewing the papers on the affair and talking with some of the officers of the Manoa, who accompanied the crew, issued warrants against the forty-one men, charging them with conspiring to steal liquor and watches from the ship's cargo with having in their possession those articles and with the embezzlement of them and with tearing and cutting and injuring mail pouches with intent to rob the same.

When arraigned before United States Commissioner Matteson the men all pleaded not guilty. Some asked for a preliminary hearing, while others waived examination. No one was able to produce bail, which was fixed at from $500 to $5,000. After the arraignments the men were loaded into a five-ton truck and driven to the Providence County Jail to await the disposition of their cases. Hearings will be held within ten days.

ACTORS PLAN STUNT ON BOSTON COMMON

Show girls, chorus cuties, and stars again today made a tour of the downtown sections of the city in the interests of the National Vaudeville Artists' matinee, which takes place tomorrow in all the vaudeville theatres of Boston. Plans are complete for festivities at the Parkman Bandstand on the Common Friday noon in connection with the sale of matinee tickets. Tickets will be auctioned off by theatrical stars. The entire proceeds of the special double-sized matinees will be turned over to the N. V. A. for its fund to provide every active member with a free insurance policy of $1,000.

Lexington Names Its Four Cemeteries

The town of Lexington has just voted to adopt its names for its four cemeteries.

The one in East Lexington will be known as the Robbins' Cemetery, the large cemetery near the centre of the town, Lexington cemetery, the old burying ground, where a number of Revolutionary heroes are buried, the Colonial Cemetery, and the new cemetery in North Lexington, the West View Cemetery.

SPRINKLERS OF MORE USE THAN FIRE ALARMS

Afford Much More Protection to Property, Says John R. Murphy

Fire Commissioner John R. Murphy declares that automatic sprinklers afford much more protection to property than automatic fire alarm systems.

He was commenting on the bill before the Legislature to give owners of apartment houses the use of automatic fire alarms instead of sprinklers under certain conditions, and he presents statistics showing how the sprinklers excel in protection.

"The record of automatic fire alarm systems," he said, "does not begin to compare with the record of automatic sprinklers. The National Fire Protection Association reports that out of about 22,800 fires in buildings equipped with automatic sprinklers, 65 1-3 per cent. were totally extinguished by the sprinklers, 30 1-3 per cent. were held in check until the arrival of outside aid, and the balance, 4.34 per cent., failed because of human neglect.

NEVER LOSS OF LIFE.

"It is claimed that there never was a loss of life in a building equipped with automatic sprinklers."

Commissioner Murphy said he did not believe that an automatic fire alarm system could be established which would protect outlying sections of Boston, because of the heavy expense.

"Automatic fire alarms cover Boston proper, Charlestown and some parts of South Boston, but the system does not cover the rest of the city. A proper system must have a central station and be centrally supervised.

"If an automatic alarm is sent direct to a fire station the apparatus may be out and the system, as a result, would be useless and the alarm would not be received. Furthermore, any automatic fire alarm company would be limited in reaching isolated buildings in outlying sections because of the expense.

NOT THE CHECK.

"All an automatic alarm system is expected to do is notify the nearest fire station through a central office or company, known as an automatic fire alarm company. The fire alarm company then notifies the fire department and apparatus is rushed to the fire.

"The alarm does not hold the fire in check or put it out. Such a system is of aid to the department, but is not sufficient to cover all emergencies."

Incidentally, Commissioner Murphy said that insurance companies have cut rates where automatic sprinklers are installed.

MELLON TO URGE EXCESS PROFIT TAX REPEAL

Revision Program Will Be Ready to Send to Congress on Monday

By International News Service.

Washington, April 7.—Immediate repeal of the excess profits tax will be formally recommended to Congress on Monday by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, the secretary announced today.

Secretary Mellon stated his tax revision program was not yet completed, but he would have it ready to forward to Congress on Monday.

The question of funding the floating indebtedness of the United States is under consideration, but will probably be deferred until after the tax revision program is underway, the secretary said.

WOMAN INSPECTOR FOR FACTORIES IN N. H. BILL

Manchester, N. H., April 7.—A measure introduced by Representative Frank H. Challis of Manchester, providing for a woman factory inspector, which had been passed by the House, was passed by the Senate.

The law provides that the number of factory inspectors shall be increased from two to three and that one of them shall be a woman.

CHRISTIAN SCIENTIST ANSWERS EDITORIAL

Editor Boston American:

Kindly permit me to say a word with reference to an editorial.

Christian Science does indeed deny that a cancer or any form of evil is absolutely real. As Mrs. Eddy has said: "Reality is spiritual, harmonious, immutable, immortal, divine, eternal." (Science and Health, p. 325.) Consistently with this teaching, however, Christian Scientists recognize that human experience includes evil and needs a remedy for it.

In fact, Christian Science is the remedy by which human experience can be made better and better, until freedom from evil is fully attained. As regards the human sense of cancer or what not, Mrs. Eddy has stated the scientific explanation as follows: "Mortal mind sees what it believes as certainly as it believes what it sees." (Science and Health, p. 84.)

Persons suffering from cancer have been cured by Christian Science in more than a few authentic cases.

Sincerely yours,
CLIFFORD P. SMITH,
Committee on Publication of the First Church of Christ, Scientist.

SIMMONS JUNIORS BEAT FRESHMEN 18-6

The Junior basketball team of Simmons College beat the Freshmen by 18-6 in the second game in the schedule. The first game between the Seniors and the Sophomores resulted in a score of 24-8 in favor of the Seniors. The winners of these two matches will play for the school championship Monday. Miss Edna Lundstorm, Worcester, is captain of 1921 and Miss Frances Klein of Roslindale of 1922. The season will close with a dinner at which Miss Dlall and Miss Collett of the physical education department will be the guests of honor.

Faith' Leads Gassed Veteran to Talk

Minneapolis, Minn., April 7.—After thirty-one months of speechlessness Paul Robertson, Brooklyn, N. Y., wounded, gassed and shell-shocked soldier, has found his voice.

"Faith in his power to talk" evoked the cure, declared Dr. James McLaughlin, who was called to attend Robertson when he was feeling queer just before the vocal cord articulated its first word in nearly three years.

GERMANY RIVAL OF U. S. IN DYES, SAYS HERTZ

Over 200 members of the Chemical Engineering Society at Massachusetts Institute of Technology heard an address by Dr. C. H. Herty, past president of the American Chemical Society and present editor of The Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, on the importance of the development of a strong dyestuff industry in the United States. "Germany is determined to maintain her pre-war supremacy in organic chemistry and will strangle us if she can," said Dr. Herty. He said that the future of our chemical industries depends largely upon protective legislation.

HAPGOOD RAPS U. S. 'THEFT' OF GERMAN DYES

Discloses Harvard Man's Scorn of "Dishonest" Grab Involving Millions

By NORMAN HAPGOOD, Editorial Correspondent of Boston American.

Washington, April 7.—Francis P. Garvan, until recently Alien Property Custodian, now president of a trust to which he has sold the most valuable German properties, has written about his monopoly enterprise to a distinguished Harvard professor and received a disconcerting answer.

The Alien Property Custodian as he was then, although that in selling the property in his charge to a monopoly of which he was the president, he was doing something remarkably patriotic. Jack Horner had nothing on him. He put in his thumb, and pulled out a plum, and said what a good boy he was. The Harvard professor couldn't see it.

SPURNS GARVAN PROPOSAL.

But let the correspondent tell the weird tale. Mr. Garvan writes to the professor of industrial medicine at Harvard:

"I am sending to you a pamphlet concerning the chemical foundation. We are entering the age of chemistry, and if our nation is to take its place among the leaders in chemical research and resource, we must look to such institutions as yours for the trained men and women to carry on the fight against German supremacy that was begun by our chemists during the war."

Dr. Hamilton replies: "As for the legal aspect of the case I cannot speak. I had supposed that the duty of the Alien Property Custodian was custodial, and did not in any way include the 'Americanization of the German dye industry,' or the seizure of the German patents. There may be wrong. The procedures may have been in accordance with international law. But as to their essential dishonesty and unfairness there can be, I should suppose, no two opinions.

SAYS DISHONESTY OF GRAB.

"Nor can I see how American chemists can be planning to build up the science in this country at the expense of their own honor. Surely if we do not care enough for the science of chemistry to undergo the labor and expense necessary to do-velop it as the Germans did, we should blush to do so by the short but mean way of stealing the products of their brains. No other branch of science would be guilty of such methods. Why should chemistry?

"Scientists have hitherto cherished very strict code of fairness of honorable conduct, and it is hard for me to believe that American chemists are about to surrender it for a more than dubious code. And to camouflage this with a thin coat of patriotism only makes it worse. The charges brought against German business methods, the selling abroad for less than the home price, the formation of trusts and price agreements, the dumping of goods to drive out a competitor, are too familiar to us here in America to arouse a genuine indignation. If we criticise the Germans for such methods, it must be because we desire to cast blame on them, perhaps in order to justify ourselves for doing something which we know is dishonorable.

4,500 PATENTS "SOLD."

"If chemistry can flourish in the United States only on the proceeds of theft, material and intellectual, it had better die, at once."

So much for Harvard. Just what was the proposal that called out such condemnation from the professor of industrial medicine? The Alien Property Custodian began the performances, apparently, when Mr. Palmer held the job. He sold 4,500 patents which applied to chemistry. He did not sell them in the open market. Far from it. He sold them to the "Chemical Foundation."

Also the custodian, either Mr. Palmer or Mr. Garvan, would further, the new monopoly has taken over the German copyrights and means to go right on publishing under the copyrights made popular by the former owners.

PATRIOTIC "CAMOUFLAGE."

Dr. Hamilton calls this theft, but Mr. Garvan says: "Can it be that through this medium idealist America may snatch the torch of unsullied science from the barbarian, and place it in the hands of an enlightened civilization?"

Mr. Garvan concludes his appeal like this: "They (veterans, alive or dead) must lean over the cribs of those little ones (the babies of the land) and listen to the prayers of gratitude those little lips are lisping in their behalf. Would they know the depth of the realization of our obligations and strength of our resolve that they shall not have suffered and died in vain."

That is what Dr. Hamilton ventures to call the camouflage of patriotism.

MILLIONS FOR THOUSANDS.

It looks as if the alien property custodian was fairly generous with the foundation. The price looks good. I quote now from the prospectus: "To the foundation, thus organized, the alien property custodian has sold for the sum of $250,000 (yes, thousand, you thought I meant million) substantially all of the German dye chemical patents seized by him, except those which were included in the sale of the Bayer Company, Inc., which took place before the organization of the Foundation."

That seems a pity about the Bayer patents. If the foundation had been started earlier there might have been no German patents, trade marks and copyrights that were not wholly under its control. Even so, however, it comes out pretty well. For $250,000 (thousand, I repeat) it acquires a despotic power over the course of the dye industry in the United States. It will decide whether or not a firm is "patriotic" enough to indulge in these lines of business.

Tomorrow I will explain a little further to my genius and forbearing readers what all this means to them.

Suffolk Law School Dedication Friday

Tomorrow night is to be dedication night at the new Suffolk Law School Building. The students, graduates will be there to inspect the new $150,000 building at Temple and Derne streets, in the rear of the State House. The new building contains lecture halls to accommodate 2,200 students, a roof garden and a beautiful theatre, to be known as the Suffolk Theatre. Prominent State and their friends and county officials and other prominent speakers will pay their respects to the trustees and above all to Gleason L. Archer, dean and founder of the school. A gift of the students will be presented to the dean by Richard S. Kaplan, editor of the Suffolk Law School Register.

Richard S. Kaplan

PROF. ALLYN EXHIBITS SOLID CUBES OF LIQUOR

Westfield, April 7.—Solid cubes of liquor of a size to be easily carried in one's vest pocket and said to be as good as a "shot" of whiskey when consumed, were exhibited here by Professor L. B. Allyn, Westfield's noted pure food expert, at a meeting of paper-making officials. Professor Allyn's popularity has jumped amazingly since his exhibit became known. But he has no intention of violating the prohibition laws and the thirsty may expect no comfort when they board a train for Westfield.

DUBLIN MAYOR EXPECTED IN 2 WEEKS

May Enter U. S. Secretly to Protest British Bans on Relief Funds

Washington, April 7.— Laurence O'Neil, Lord Mayor of Dublin, will arrive in the United States within two weeks, according to information received by the American Commission on Conditions in Ireland.

It is not known whether the Dublin Lord Mayor will come openly with a British passport, or secretly as the Lord Mayor O'Callaghan of Cork.

The position of Lord Mayor O'Neil is peculiar, in that while an unwritten promise by Premier Lloyd George has until now been seriously molested by British authorities.

On one occasion he demanded that Dublin castle Scottish guards to protect him from men who were threatening his life. The guards were furnished.

The principal purpose of Lord Mayor O'Neil's visit to America is to seek to have diplomatic pressure brought against the British Government to call that the Irish White Cross cannot administer relief funds collected in America because it is only a "republican" body. He will also denounce attempts by the British government to discredit and pervert the administration of relief funds in Ireland. While here he is expected to appear as a witness before the American Commission on Conditions in Ireland.

Since the order of General Macready the funds for Irish Relief have been administered by James Douglas, a Scotch Quaker, who is treasurer of the Irish White Cross. In the capacity of a private citizen, it is understood that Mr. Douglas intends to bring individuals responsible for the distribution of the funds indicted.

WILLIAM ORR COUNCIL TO MEET TOMORROW

William Orr Council, A. B., '21, will meet tomorrow at Onaman Hall, North Cambridge. The scheduled speakers are Thomas A. Niland, president of the Boston Naptheon Commission; John E. Shields, Michael Hastings of New York, H. V. Sexton and D. J. Cronin.

SOUTH END COUPLE ARRESTED IN PROVIDENCE

A man and woman giving their names as William J. Reilly and wife, Mildred, were arrested in Providence by inspectors Mitchell and Murray of the Boston police, charged with the larceny of an automobile valued at $1,000.

Reilly, who says he is twenty-three years old, gave his address as No. 134 Warren avenue, and Mildred gave hers as 1 Ashley street, residences as No. 198 East Newton street, Boston.

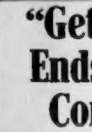
"Gets-It" Ends All Corns

Just As Good for Calluses. Money Back If It Fails.

Thirty seconds after you touch the corn with this liquid corn remover, the aching, stabbing pain of it stops, for all time.



Simple As A, B, C.

No corn, hard or soft, is too old or too deeply rooted to resist "Gets-It." Immediately it dries and shrivels, the edges loosen from the true flesh and soon you can peel it right off with your fingers as painlessly as you trim your nails.

Don't coddle corn pests. Don't nurse and pamper them. Don't cut and trim them. REMOVE them with "GETS-IT." Gets a trifle at any drug store. Mfd. by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

Rash On Limbs Itched Intensely Cuticura Heals

"My trouble began with a breaking out like eczema on both limbs. It broke out in a rash and the itching and burning was intense. I scratched it and irritated both limbs, and my clothing aggravated it and made it worse. I lost sleep at night as it itched and burned so.

"I tried several different things but they did not help me. I saw an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and immediately sent for a sample. I bought more and after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Frank H. Lockett, Main St., Chatham, Mass.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How To Treat

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not an organic disorder or lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless in the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no fear of indigestion.

Use Cocoanut Oil For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at almost any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—Advertisement.

A Simple Way to Remove Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed, when we could get it to use, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely destroy and entirely every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will take that fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.—Advertisement.

TRYING TO GET GOAT OF TITLE TEST EDITOR

Correspondents Still Worrying About Pictures; Just Watch Daily List

Spring is here.

Feel so good that, as Bugs Baer says, if Jack Dempsey spoke a rough word to you on the first of the Thousand Islands you could knock him for the other 999.

Everybody is "aces." The kids are sorry to have you leave the house. The Missus give you one of her A. D. 1995 kisses. The Boss greets you pleasantly. "Nice work, kid," says he—speaking, no doubt, of our enjoyable Test. Even the Head Office Boy is friendly. At peace with all the world, you sit down to the little old job, grab one of ninety-five letters, and—blooey!—you are off on the left foot with this one:

NOW, ONCE AGAIN.

Boston, Mass., April 5, 1921.

Movie Title Editor,

Dear Sir:

You replied to a participant through your column that their titles were not correct nor would there be any such titles used in the future by that name.

Later on, in your column, you state to a participant that no list of correct titles exists because the future pictures have not been drawn as yet by the artist. On what facts do you base your printed statements?

Truthfully yours,

(Signed) A. L.

The Test Editor recalls them very well.

One participant wrote in to call attention to the fact that on a certain day there had appeared in the List of Titles the title "In Pursuit of Polly," which by some hocus-pocus later became, in the types, "In Pursuit of Folly." The inquirer wanted to know which was right.

Being a lazy man, and faced by the necessity of poring over two long sand or more titles, the Title Test Editor made a short cut of it by assuring this correspondent (and all others interested) that he must not worry any longer about it. He could be sure of one thing, the editor said, and that was that neither "In Pursuit of Polly" nor "In Pursuit of Folly" had been, or would be, the title of a Test Picture.

ADVICE TO THE WORRIED.

In the next case, a Haverhill woman wrote that somebody in the theatre way of business up there was "getting her goat"—these were her words—by telling her that this Title Test was a perfect cinch for him because he had a book containing all the TITLES AND ALL THE PICTURES.

Our advice to the lady—she appeared to have worried herself sick—was not to take the matter too seriously. We reminded her that there are thousands of keen minds in the competition. We told her that the gentleman must be a romanticist, for the reason that the artist had not yet applied himself to the later pictures.

This, also, was the truth. At this writing, eleven pictures are yet to be drawn.

Some of you may be interested in the modus operandi. The editor selects the titles which HE wishes to have illustrated. These are described to the artist the picture he wants. Sometimes a three-hour conference has resulted in a decision to cover not more than five or six pictures. The conference at an end, Mr. Artist goes off to his booth, locks himself in and gets busy. Some of his finished product has been turned down as "no good." Some has been rejected because, in the opinion of the editor, "too involved" for the artist to give gentleman of ideas. He knows words. He is out to ball you all up, but in a fair game and in a straightforward way.

ABOUT THAT CALENDAR.

So, in brief, both statements were correct. There has been no "Pursuit of What's-its-Name." There will not be. The last of the pictures have NOT been drawn, but gracious sakes, don't you suppose the editor is authorized to make a pledge (and keep it) that he will not ask Mr. Artist to tackle a certain subject?

The Title Test Editor has taken considerable space to dispose of a letter which may not be worthy of it. He prefers to believe that the writer of the above letter was moved by good intentions.

We have discussed with Mr. Artist, by the way, the open letters calling attention to the calendar in Picture No. 39. All of you will be interested in his statement:

"I left the days of the week off that calendar purposely. My reason was that I meant it to represent a calendar and NOT the calendar for the month of March, in the present year. If I meant it to be the latter I would have put the days of the week on it. I left them off, and chose to start the month in March off with Sunday would find it difficult to prove it. I drew them ALL that the calendar represents. A calendar and not THE calendar of a given month."

With all this talk of artists, and calendars, and such like, the Title Test Editor finds himself at the end of his allotted space. Many correspondents are waiting to have their questions here will find them in the Sunday Advertiser.

BUSINESS SHOW IS BREAKING ALL RECORDS

All records for attendance at the National Business Show at Mechanics Hall are being broken this year. Today from 1 to 5 o'clock executives only will be admitted, and having firms from Worcester, Providence and other New England cities will send delegations to the show to examine the various lithe and labor-saving devices. In the evening the show is open to everybody again.

Civil War Veteran of 24 Battles Dead

George W. Wentworth is dead at the Soldiers' Home, Chelsea. He was a member of the Haverhill Common Council and Board of Aldermen thirty years ago. He was also prominent in Major Howe Post, G. A. R. (General Hurlbut Command, U. V. U., and was a past commander of the Department of Massachusetts, G. A. R., and a member of General Lawton Post, G. A. R., Lawrence.

After the Civil War he was in the real estate business until he retired in 1916. The son of Isaac Wentworth, he was born in Acton, Me., February 1, 1835. He enlisted August 14, 1862, in Company I, 49th Regiment, Massachusetts Volunteers, for three years.

B. U. TO ESTABLISH SECOND MAINE CAMP

A second Summer camp will probably have to be established near the present Boston University Summer School camp for Federal Board Men at Ellsworth, Me., as Boston University has sent invitations to colleges throughout the South in which 200,000 World War veterans are enrolled to attend the Summer school in Maine. The Hub institution has expressed its willingness to co-operate with the National headquarters in taking care of all the men that care to come.

PETERS' BUDGET SO CLOSE IT CAN'T BE CUT

Council Committee Unable to Prune $33,000,000 City Appropriation

Boston's $33,000,000 budget will go before the city council with a recommendation for passage, at next Monday's meeting, pretty much as Mayor Peters sent it to them.

The council committee on appropriations, consisting of all the members of the council, couldn't see a chance to cut a nickel from it after the Mayor had got through with it, the budget will be passed practically without change. Last year they pruned about $80,000 from it.

City Councillor Moriarty served notice that he will vote against the health department appropriation on account of the fact that Mrs. Carrie B. Bligh, head of the Blossom street health unit, is an alien, though her salary is paid by the Red Cross. He also intends, he said, to vote against paying Miss Effie M. Fife $2,800, because he believes she is not a resident of Boston. She is the Second highest paid woman clerk in city hall, being secretary to Institutions Commissioner O'Brien.

FOR WOMEN

FOR CHILDREN

ATHENA Underwear

ATHENA Underwear brings complete comfort, with a sense of poise and certain distinction, because it is tailored and fashioned to fit; not stretched to fit. You cannot know what real underwear luxury means until you wear ATHENA.

It has many features which rarely fail to win the approval and preference of women of exacting and discriminating taste. Let us show them to you. Its beautiful fabrics and dainty trimmings have an irresistible appeal.

Note the striking contrast between the shaping of ATHENA Underwear and ordinary underwear, as shown by the graphic comparative illustrations above.

ATHENA Underwear is made in all sizes, weights and qualities, at the prices you pay for ordinary underwear. Women's union suits, $1.15 to $8. Vests and tights, 85c to $5.25. Children's and misses' vests and pants, sizes 8 to 16 years, 60c each. Children's union suits, 8 to 16 years, $1.

Rules of the Movie Play Title Test

The Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser have arranged a Title Picture Test of skill for the entertainment of the readers of the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, irrespective of age, living in any city or town in New England or Canada.

Each picture will be published in the Boston American on Thursday and numbered consecutively, beginning with No. 1. Each picture will be published upon each day consecutively in the Daily American and Sunday Advertiser.

All employes of the Boston American, the Boston Sunday Advertiser and their families are absolutely barred from participating in the Title Test.

The Test will consist of 60 pictures, exercising the title of a Motion Picture Play, to be printed one each day in the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser on Thursday, February 24, 1921.

Any participant in any other contest which has been run, which is now running or which may be run by the Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser will not debar anyone from entering this test.

Every participant out of all members of a family will be allowed to submit one set of pictures. Only each must contain only ONE TITLE to each picture, and no participant will be allowed to send more than one award and no more than one award will be given in the Title Test.

Each picture will be numbered and printed or printed on the coupons furnished by the Boston American or Boston Sunday Advertiser, or on a piece of some book form by itself, or accompanied by the picture furnished by the Boston American or Boston Sunday Advertiser, or on a piece of paper, copy thereof, the participant can send. Evidence, etc., of the participant can be sent in.

Do not write your title in "fine" hand, as do not write titles under one another on a piece of paper.

In case there are not complete sets of correct titles, awards will be given to the person submitting the most correct solutions.

The decision of the judges will be final.

In case of a tie, awards will be made on the basis of neatness, judgment and accuracy, and if the tie cannot be settled in that way the tied participants will receive similar awards.

Every participant should participate and send in their titles before the end of the Test, as only in the last picture or last pictures printed will not be considered. KEEP your title from day to day and at the end of the last arrange them in numerical order and send them in. Do not send in titles for each picture, but carefully write them down, 1 to 60. The first title next to after the last picture printed will be taken as the last submitted.

All titles must be delivered to the Boston American Movie Play Title Headquarters, at the Boston American office, by 5 o'clock p. m. on the day following the publication of the last picture printed with which he announced later.

Each picture or number containing titles must be legibly addressed as follows: "Movie Play Title Test, Boston American, Boston, Mass." Each picture or number containing titles must be stamped on the upper left-hand corner with sufficient postage. Each must contain written or printed matter, if mailed, it is subject to letter postage. Each picture or number containing titles must be legibly written with the character name to the question or practical joke. Only one title per picture or number. The Boston Sunday Advertiser reserves the right to refuse to accept any titles for social delivery are not received in time.

Only one title per picture or number. Any participant may submit as many sets of titles as he or she desires, but each set must be mailed separately. Each set must contain only one title per picture or number. The Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser will not be responsible for any titles lost in the mails or delayed in transit.

The Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser reserves the right to make any changes in, or addition to, these conditions which may be necessary to conduct the Test properly conducting the Test. The decision of the Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser will be final and binding in all matters relating to the Test, and the entry of a participant is a complete acceptance of all conditions and conditions now made or to be made.

WESTFIELD COAL DEALERS REDUCE WAGES

Westfield, April 7.—The dealers' association has reduced the wages of the coal team drivers $1 a week. The coal handlers formerly received $28 a week, and under the new agreement will receive $24 a week.

Young Married Women

Why do you see so many young married women airing dogs instead of children? Because—Why? See next Sunday's Advertiser.

R. I. ASSEMBLY HEARS WET AND DRY TALKS

Providence, R. I., April 7.—Arguments for and against the proposed State "dry" enforcement act were heard by the General Assembly. Among the speakers for the act were Wayne B. Wheeler of Washington, counsel for the National Anti-Saloon League, Nathan W. Littlefield of this city, Representative Davis of Westerly, and Mrs. Deborah Knorr Livingston. The Assembly took the matter under consideration.

STRANDED BOAT PULLED OFF BY CUTTER

British Freighter Gaelic Prince Released From Nantucket Sound Shoals

The British freighter steamer Gaelic Prince has been floated from Great Round Shoal, in Nantucket Sound, where she stranded on March 31. A part of her cargo was lightered and she was moved 100 feet on the morning tide and last night the coast guard cutter Acushnet sent word here that she had succeeded in pulling the steamer off.

PIANIST

DAI BUELL.

Dai Buell, the well known concert pianist, is to play the Liszt Concerto in E flat on Sunday afternoon, April 10, with the People's Symphony Orchestra, at Convention Hall at 3:30. The conductor is Emil Mollenhauer.

McSWEENEY TO TALK ON ERIN AS U. S. QUESTION

Edward F. McSweeney, well-known Boston publicist, will discuss "Ireland as an American Question," in Highland Hall, West Roxbury, the night of April 18. The address will be delivered at a gathering arranged by men and women of West Roxbury in aid of the Irish Relief Fund. There will be four hours of dancing.

WAR HERO TO HAVE MILITARY FUNERAL

Body of Joseph Kennedy, Famous Athlete, Reaches Manchester, N. H., Tomorrow

Manchester, N. H., April 7.—The body of Joseph A. Kennedy, killed in action in Flanders, will reach this city tomorrow morning and will be given a military funeral by the members of the American Legion, who will escort the body to the Blessed Sacrament Church and to St. Joseph's Cemetery.

Kennedy was killed on the morning of October 18, at St. Soupiel, in a charge which had been planned from information furnished by him after he had swam the river and penetrated the German lines, locating a hidden machine gun nest and obtaining information about the German positions.

His death fulfilled a prediction made by him to his comrades the night before that he was to be killed in action in the morning.

Kennedy was one of seven brothers who attained prominence as athletes. He held the New England championship for diving in 1914-15 and was swimming instructor at Columbia University where his brother John was captain of the football team and later coach.

He enlisted at the entrance of the United States into the war and was assigned to H Company, 107th Infantry of the 27th Division.

Bridgewater Civil War Post Fades Away

Bridgewater, April 7.—Unable to secure a quorum to transact routine business, Bridgewater Post, G. A. R., has surrendered its charter to the Department of Massachusetts and will disband its nine remaining vets at an early date. The decimating of its ranks and the incapacity of its remaining members, together with the non-residence of others, has made the move a necessity, Chaplain William Gordon stated.

The nine remaining members are William Gordon, Jesse Brown, Harrison Packard, Josiah Atwood and E. W. Merritt of this town, E. V. Tyler of North Easton, Perez Vaughan and Amasiah Lovell of Whitman and Rev. James Taylor of Warren, Vt.

The flags, pictures and muskets will be presented to the Public Memorial Library and the charter and other records will be forwarded to the adjutant general's office in Boston.

DR. VAN ALLEN TO SEE ERIN AS SHE IS

Dr. William Harmon Van Allen, rector of the Church of the Advent, is to sail for England on June 15 from Montreal. He has been asked to visit Ireland and report on conditions there. Dr. Van Allen plans to remain abroad all Summer and he hopes to be able to bring out much definite data regarding Irish conditions.

MOTORCYCLE DAY, THIS, IN CAMPAIGN

Drivers Urged to Use More Caution, Stop Speeding and Muffle Engine

Today is "Careful Motorcyclists" Day in the Safe Roads Week Campaign, being conducted by the Safe Roads Federation of Massachusetts, with the co-operation of more than forty cities throughout the State.

Special efforts will be directed today toward impressing the need for careful driving by motorcyclists. Several hundred men and boys were injured last year on motorcycles or bicycles.

Excessive speed is given as the chief cause for motorcycle accidents, together with quick turns on slippery roads and taking too many chances in heavy traffic. In a recent group of accidents fourteen out of twenty riders were killed and six injured. In a group of sixteen bicycle accidents eleven were fatal.

All riders are urged to observe these rules:

Don't attempt to speed until you are an experienced driver; keep your speed down when there are curves ahead or you are in heavy traffic or the weather is bad; and don't try to create an impression of great speed by driving with your muffler cut-out open.

40% Less Than Last Season

3 x 6 feet	2.50	8 x 10 feet	11.25
6 x 9 feet	7.50	9 x 12 feet	12.95

THESE are "Rexmere" rugs, beautifully stenciled in attractive designs duplicating those of costly Chinese rugs. They are distinctly new and decidedly fine for the Summer, when grass rugs are desirable because they do not collect dirt and are so easily kept clean. There is a richness in their appearance despite the low prices at which we now offer them.

DIAMOND JEWELRY

At 30 to 40 per cent. under current prices

Our Amsterdam agents have lately obtained several lots of Diamonds at a very low price—due to the recent peculiarly favorable rate of foreign exchange. In other words, at that particular time our American dollars secured more value in Diamonds than at any time in recent years. A similar monetary situation will probably never occur again. Therefore, our good fortune in having our agency on the spot at that time is likewise your good fortune for it enables Jason Weiler & Sons to offer Diamonds at guaranteed savings of 30 per cent. to 40 per cent. on prices now prevailing in America.

DO YOU CATCH COLD EASILY?

HOW TO AVOID IT

Colds are due to germs. No one can prevent the germs from getting into your nose and throat. But you can help keep plenty of strong, vigorous, "anti-bodies" in your blood to fight and kill off the nasty "cold germs" before they do you any harm.

To develop those germ destroying "anti-bodies" promptly, you must have plenty of pure rich, red blood and a strong, vigorous constitution—in fact, this is the best preventative against almost any disease.

If you are weak, nervous or run down, as subject to colds, take no chances, for you may develop serious throat, bronchial or lung trouble or perhaps pneumonia and you may call the doctor. Therefore commence to enrich your blood and build up your nerve centers "disease germs" today. Get more and better blood and make stronger nerves there is nothing superior to NUXATED IRON as it contains organic iron like the iron in your blood and when taken as directed regenerating the principal chemical constituent of active living cells, helps to feed the nerves. Nuxated iron may therefore be depended upon to both a blood and a nerve tonic. It often increases the bodily and mental vigor, strength and endurance in two weeks' time.

Over 4,000,000 people are using it annually. It has been highly endorsed by former United States Senators, U. S. Army Generals, many physicians and prominent men. Even the Pope at Rome mentioned it favorably in a recent address to the students of the Papal Pharmacy Normale of Paris.

Ask your druggist for it, the manufacturers will refund your money, if not entirely satisfactory. Look for the word "NUXATED" on every package and on every tablet. N. I. on every tablet. Sold by all druggists.

CAN'T BEAT "TIZ" WHEN FEET HURT

"Tiz" for sore, tired, puffed-up, aching, calloused feet or corns.

You can be happy-footed in a moment. Use "Tiz" and never suffer with tender, raw, burning, blistered, swollen, tired, smelly feet. "Tiz" and only "Tiz" takes the pain and soreness out of corns, callouses and bunions.

As soon as you put your feet in a "Tiz" bath, you just feel the happiness soaking in. How good your poor, old feet feel. They want to dance for joy. "Tiz" is grand. "Tiz" instantly draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause sore, inflamed, aching, sweaty, smelly feet.

Get a box of "Tiz" at any drug store or department store. Get instant foot relief. Laugh at foot sufferers who complain. Because your feet are never, never going to bother or make you limp any more. —Advertisement.

RHEUMATIC PAINS RAISING A RUMPUS?

Have Sloan's Liniment ready for sudden rheumatic twinges

Getting Too Fat? Try This—Reduce

People who don't know too fat are the fortunate exceptions. But if you find the fat accumulating or already cumbersome, you will be wise to follow this suggestion, which is endorsed by thousands of people who know. Ask your druggist (or if you prefer write to the Marmola Co., 4612 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich.) for a few cents worth of Marmola Prescription Tablets. Take as directed and see how much better you look and feel. You will be safe from harmful drugs and be able to reduce two, three or four pounds a week without dieting or exercise.—Advertisement.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

WAY out beyond the 125th Street Station in New York there is a huge white cement building that looks like a factory—the kind the advertisements call "the home of sunshine" or "the house with a million windows." This is the International Studio, where they make the Goldwyn productions.

When we went out there last Friday morning, we fully expected to be swept into a wild confusion of excited stars and leading players going through rehearsals of violent movie scenes, directors howling orders through their megaphones, camera men shifting the positions of their cameras, and mechanics shouting directions about the lighting.

But instead, everything was comparatively quiet. In the studios the action is concentrated on the small space in which the work is going on. The rest of the vast building is as silent as if there were no actors there, and voices are muffled within a short distance of the set in question.

They were working on Marion Davies' next feature, "Enchantment," taken from the story, "Manhandling Ethel." Before a large glass door which, when you see it, on the screen, you will be willing to swear must have been in a real house, Forrest Stanley, who has just signed a "come-back" to the screen in Cecil De Mille's "Forbidden Fruit," was standing, hat shoved back on his head and coat and cane grasped sullenly.

"Oh, Bertie!" Marion Davies called out, jumped into the focus, and dashed toward him.

A little slower? someone advised quietly from the camera. It was hard to believe that a director could direct as gently as that. Why do they always pose with tremendous megaphones in their hands and haggard expressions on their faces?

Robert Vignola, who is making "Enchantment," after his success with "Passionate Pilgrim" and "Straight Is the Way," is a disappointment if you are looking for the press-agented sort of director. He doesn't wear riding clothes when he's working, nor does he always carry a megaphone. On the contrary, he is no different from any man who leaves home in the morning to go to his office. There is nothing to indicate posing or temperament.

On the set, Miss Davies rushed toward Stanley. He turned and looked scornfully at her; she stopped at the look and drooped her head, ashamed, and then said:

"I'm sorry about it. It was just a huge mistake." Stanley slowly smiled, dropped his things, and sprang at her with a whoop of joy. Then they started on the kiss that the last foot of the last reel always holds.

"Wait a minute," Vignola said critically. "It's a surprise, Marion. You look as if you're anticipating it."

"Anticipating it!" Miss Davies snorted, then laughed. "After five reels of misunderstanding, the heroine feels it's coming to her!"

"Anyhow," Vignola laughed, "we'll have a 'retake.'"

THE FIRST SIGN OF TEMPERAMENT.

SEVERAL times each scene was rehearsed, then the lights were adjusted—a delicate job—and the camera-men declared themselves ready to "shoot." Twice and three times the picture was taken. Afterward the film would be hurried to the developing department, and while in a few hours would be run off in the projection room and the best picture of each scene would be chosen for the final showing.

After that they moved everything back to take a "long shot" of the set. The lights were moved, the cameras shifted, and the rehearsals went on again. Mr. Vignola went back to look it over. Suddenly he decided to sit down beside the camera to direct. Then things began to happen.

There were chairs galore of all sorts, gorgeous tapestried ones in the sets, plain cane and others, and large wooden ones, as well as the canvas folding chairs that directors always use. Each was suggested in turn for Mr. Vignola, but no, he couldn't direct from any chair but the one that had his name on it.

Everyone scurried around the studio, overturning chair after chair, but Vignola's wasn't in sight. We watched wondering, but they all seemed to take it for granted that there was nothing unusual about it. Suddenly we heard a whispered "Hi," and sounds of a consultation. When we looked around, we saw a row of "props" eyeing us ominously.

We knew then. With a hasty remark we stood up and walked around the chair. On the back, in letters six inches high, was the name, "Robert Vignola." We were crushed, but Mr. Vignola turned grinned cheerfully and said glibly, "That's all right. That's all right." Someone brought a large and rather imposing chair and we crept into it to watch the rest of the proceedings. After that everything was serene and the "shots" were taken without more interruption.

EMIL JENNINGS, who played the role of Louis XIV. in the Continental film, "Passion," is an American. He went to Germany a few years ago and became very popular with audiences there. During the war he was interned in that country until a short time ago. He will play the role of Henry VIII. in the European film, "Deception," which tells the story of Ann Boleyn.

NORMAN TREVOR, who played opposite Florence Reed in the Ziegfeld film, "The Black Panther's Cub," has been summoned to appear in court in New York tomorrow to answer a charge of giving a theatrical performance on Sunday night. Trevor, who is appearing with Gilda Varesi in "Enter Madame" on the stage, arranged to give Oscar Wilde's "An Ideal Husband," for a hospital benefit.

IRISH CHAPELS RAIDED BY SOLDIERS

Even the Tabernacle Not Regarded as Sacred, Says Dublin Letter

Loyalists in Ireland are becoming rebels as a result of the atrocities inflicted on innocent people by the Crown forces, according to a letter received by Edward J. Carpenter of No. 12 Plantation street, Worcester.

The letter, mailed in Dublin, Ireland, is date March 22, 1921. The writer's name is withheld. The letter reads in part:

"The chapels are raided in Dublin and in the country. Congregations are often held up and searched after mass. Sometimes the armed soldiers walk into the chapels with revolvers and rifles while divine service is going on, and have in one case searched the tabernacle.

"All convents have been raided. In one there was a newly made grave where a nun was buried. The body was dug up.

"Imagine being held up and told to put your hands up an dcalled—Irish swine and then be punched in the face and called a vile name. Your money is taken from you. This is not hearsay. I know several chaps who have been robbed.

"The soldiers have burned half of Ireland. They specialize in burning creameries in the south of Ireland. They throw bombs out of lorries, then blaze away with revolver and rifles, with the result that innocent civilians, women and children are killed.

"I suppose you have heard how they decoyed poor Father Griffin away at midnight on the pretense of a sick call. His body was found in a bog with the nails wrenched off his fingers. His throat was cut from ear to ear, and there was a bullet in his temple. Great God, how long are You going to permit this British bully to crucify us!"

DEFENDERS IN DRIVE FOR 20,000 MEMBERS

The National Defender drive for 20,000 new members in Boston is meeting with a success that has exceeded the expectations of Parker H. Litchfield and Joseph P. Maffeo, the department directors in charge of New England. This is so far in the campaign, has been along educational lines and has attracted a large number of prospective members, the majority of whom are World War veterans, to the drive headquarters at suite 215, No. 101 Tremont street.

PUPILS OF 20 RACES FINISH SCHOOL COURSE

Portland, Me., April 7.—"America" was sung by 175 students representing twenty languages at the graduation exercises of the Portland evening high school. About fifty of them were recent immigrants. The school had on its roll women over sixty years of age, and one of them took a course in millinery. Everything from rudiments of the English language to automobile repairing was on the curriculum.

LET HOME TO MOONSHINERS FOR QUART AND $5 A WEEK

Westfield, April 7.—Two men, whose names he would not disclose, paid Julius Pasci $5 a week and a quart of moonshine thrown in for the privilege of making liquor in his home, Pasci told United States Commissioner Rice in defending his case. Pasci was charged with having a still and a quantity of mash in his home. The defendant was bound over to the Federal Grand Jury under bonds of $500.

LYNN POLICE TO VIEW ATTLEBORO PRISONER

James F. O'Brien, held by the Attleboro police on a charge of securing money on false pretenses, is thought by the Lynn police to be the man wanted in that city on the same charge. According to the Lynn police, a man answering O'Brien's description obtained more than $1,000 for advertisements to be issued by four organizations and veterans of the World War. Officers from the Lynn force will interview O'Brien today.

This treatment will not mar the skin but to avoid disappointment, be careful to get real delatone. Mix fresh as wanted. —Advertisement.

ROSE GARDEN IS FEATURE OF BIG FLOWER SHOW

Carnations Named for Mrs. Coolidge Also Attract Much Attention

One of the most beautiful of the hundreds of attractive exhibits at the National Rose Show, which is now open in Horticultural Hall, is the rose garden of Thomas Roland of Nahant, which won a prize of $1,000. The garden occupies one end of the main hall, and is complete with beds of rare roses and little paths and arbors.

In the centre of the hall, where the scent of the thousands of flowers is strongest, is another complete garden, this one boasting a miniature spring, with goldfish swimming about, a sun-dial, a tiny lawn and carefully trimmed shrubs. This exhibition, from the Breck Nurserry Company, Lexington, was awarded a gold medal for excellence of design.

Among the out flowers the exhibition of Grace Coolidge carnations, named after the wife of the Vice-President, attracted a great deal of attention from the fanciers. These flowers are on exhibition for the first time, and the white blossoms, dotted with red, were a centre of attraction all day.

What is considered to be the most beautiful exhibition of calcelaria hybrids, a rather rare flower, the name of which means "heel of lady's slipper," was grown by Mrs. N. M. Bryant of Waltham. The blossoms on these plants are said to be the largest of that species ever produced.

Among the azaleas is an exhibition imported directly from Kuruma, Japan, which are considered a rarity in this country. One orchid plant on exhibition is bearing now 164 blossoms.

The show will continue through Sunday. This afternoon J. Horace McFarland, editor of the American Rose Annual, will speak on "The Rose in America."

Ex-King Manuel Chums With Tennis Girl

By Universal Service.

Paris, April 7.—Gossips along the Riviera are wildly speculating at the intimacy which has sprung up between former King Manuel of Portugal and Susanne Langlein, the tennis champion. The two are seen everywhere together and Susanne is refusing to play partners with anyone but Manuel who is almost the amateur champion of England.

The pair recently defeated the King of Sweden and Mrs. Blake, an English woman, who failed to score.

2 WEST VIRGINIA TOWNS SHOT UP BY MINERS

Battle With State Police Rages an Hour; Women and Children Flee for Lives

Williamson, W. Va., April 7.—Two Mingo County mining villages, Merrimac and Burnwell, were shot up by parties of men concealed along the mountain tops on the Kentucky side of the Tug river. Reports to Sheriff Pinson indicate that nearly 5,000 shots were fired into Merrimac.

The battle raged almost continuously for an hour, the firing coming, it is charged by members of the state police and citizens deputized by them, from the Kentucky side of the river. This camp was also attacked from the West Virginia side of the river.

Six men alleged to have been members of the attacking party were arrested and lodged in jail here. All the women and children in Merrimac were hurried to the Drift mouth of the mine to escape the bullets.

OVER 100,000 U. S. MINERS DESTITUTE

Jobless Since January, Says Union Chief; Government Aid Anticipated

Washington, April 7.—More than 100,000 coal miners in the bituminous fields are out of employment, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, said here today, declaring that the government must have to take steps to relieve the situation if it is to be met.

It is the most acute crisis of labor since steps were taken in the days of coal mining, when one hundred thousand miners were thrown out of employment in the Cabin Creek district of West Virginia. Many more are likely to be put out of work, Lewis said, unless the government will have to do something.

AMERICAN BOARD DESCRIBES VICIOUS BRUTALITY

The Boston American today prints the seventh in a series of nine articles taken from the report of the American Commission on Conditions in Ireland. It was made by a committee of disinterested Americans. It constitutes an amazing volume of facts and figures condemnatory of Ruthless rule.

The morale of the British troops in Ireland has broken down under the strain of their odious duties.

Taught the virtue of organized pillaging and burning "in reprisal," many of them turn thieves and highwaymen on their own account.

Taught that a tortured Republican will serve as an object lesson to the countryside, the weak and cruel and vicious elements in the service take to brutality and outrage for the mere fun of it.

These are some of the grim charges against the British soldiery made by the American Commission on Conditions in Ireland.

MANY WANTON KILLINGS.

Wanton killings are frequent, the report states. And more horrible still is the fiendish pleasure some

Georges Would Lose $50,000 If He Refused to Keep Agreement

By FID CRISBY

New York, April 7.—There are rumors emanating from Europe that our dear old pal Georges Carpentier is seriously considering cancelling his little engagement with Jack Dempsey so he can take on Frank Moran in June.

Athletes Who Have Scored in Business

FRED TENNEY.

Brown University was pretty proud of a certain fellow by the name of Tenney, who played first base and sometimes caught for the Bruin baseball nines of 1893-94, and it wasn't long afterward that that same Tenney became the special pride and baseball boast of Boston, and those who knew him or watched him play in the old days, continually recall his wonderful ability and refer to him as "the greatest ever" first baseman.

Fred Tenney came to the Boston National League team in 1894 immediately upon the completion of his college career, and continued with the team for thirteen years, playing first base, and in 1906-07 serving as manager of the team as well.

In 1908 he went to the Giants and spent three years with Mcgraw's team, returning to Boston in 1911, as manager for the local club.

That was his final year in big league baseball, and the last year but one of his active connecting with baseball—the extra year being 1913, when he managed the Newark, N. J. team.

His first venture outside of baseball came in 1912 when he entered the shoe business in West Lynn. He continued in that business for some time but changed the scene of his activities to Warren, Me. After his experience with the Newark ball club he joined the forces of the Equitable life insurance company and is now a special agent of that concern, with offices in the Old South Building.

NEW CLUB TO STAGE BATTLE

Star Welterweights Meet in Main Bout of Ten Rounds at Arena Friday Night

By JACK CONWAY.

Nate Siegal, New England welterweight champion, has an excellent chance of winning when he battles Ted (Kid) Lewis, former world's title holder, in the feature bout of ten rounds at the International Sporting Club's show at the New Boston Arena Friday night.

Siegal has improved a great deal since he won from Young Kloby and today has the necessary ability to make things mighty interesting for any man in his boxing division.

The New England champion is blessed with a world of aggressiveness and courage. He can also punch. These assets are difficult to overcome in the ring or anywhere else. These were the qualities which enabled Siegal to smash his way to such a decisive victory over Kloby.

During the past three months, Larry Conley has been tutoring Nate until the latter is now a mighty clever boxer as well as a rip-roaring, slam-bang fighter. The New England champion is blessed with as nifty a left hand as there is in the fighting world. But he didn't know how to get full value out of it until Conley took him in hand. Nate is now able to jab or hook with his left, while he rips it right to the body with damaging effect.

* * *

Lewis has engaged in some of his greatest battles in this city. Unlike most of the topnotchers, Ted will stand toe to toe with an opponent and engage in an exchange of broadsides. If he follows this line of campaign in his mill with Siegal, the fans will certainly see plenty of action.

* * *

Pal Reid will meet plenty of opposition when he doubles with Young Fisher of Syracuse in another ten-pound number. Fisher was credited with a win over Johnny Wilson at Syracuse and has enough class to make a great fight with Reid.

Tommy Robson of Malden and Soldier Bartfield of New York will be the principals in a third ten-rounder. There will also be an eight-session affair.

Reservations may be secured at Room 18, No. 23 School street. Telephone Fort Hill 1936.

PETE HERMAN'S COURAGE

Night Life on Dear Old Broadway.
Baseball's Veterans Still Set Pace.
$5,000 Jobs Are Going Begging.
Proper Handling for Arena Crowd.

By JACK CONWAY

Pete Herman, former world's bantamweight champion, is unlike most ring kings who have lost their titles. When the olive-skinned New Orleans warrior was beaten by Joe Lynch in a New York ring, he did not lose heart and start upon a life of reckless dissipation. Instead he continued his rules of physical training, and shortly after his defeat at the hands of Lynch went to England for a bout with Jimmy Wilde, Britain's sensational fighting machine. Herman knocked Wilde out and thus re-established himself as one of the great stars of the ring.

Since returning to this country Herman has engaged in two bouts. He won each of them. He has a busy campaign mapped out for the next few months, and by Fall will probably receive an opportunity to battle Lynch for the title.

Herman has proved that a man may be down, but that he is never out.

Mike O'Dowd's case is in direct contrast to that of Herman. The dethroned middleweight champion became discouraged after his defeat by Johnny Wilson in Boston, had more than his share of night life in New York, and deteriorated as a fighter. Those men who knew O'Dowd's true condition did not have any doubt as to who would win when Wilson defended his title against the challenger in New York on St. Patrick's Day night.

Our major league ball clubs are smashing their way North. The league seasons, which open next Wednesday, should witness plenty of keen competition, although the calibre of baseball will not be as good as that which was offered the public six and eight years ago. Most of the stars of today were also setting the pace in the days before the World War started. Age has not added to their playing ability, but they nevertheless are able to more than hold their own against the rush of inexperienced youngsters from the bush leagues, colleges and sand lots.

The collapse of the minor leagues during the Federal League war and the increase in the salaries paid in the ordinary jobs are the two big reasons for the absence of new baseball sensations. A decade ago there were any number of youths who could play ball who would strive for the $4,000 and $5,000 berths offered in the major leagues. These kind of positions no longer have their appeal to many of our young men, as they realize that a ball player's career is a mighty short one at the best.

Matchmaker Jack Williams of the International Sporting Club has made arrangements for the handling of the big crowd that is sure to storm the new Boston Arena tomorrow night. Williams has been connected with big sporting events for years and realizes that it is necessary to have a large number of police and attendants to properly direct affairs at an important show. He assures us that everybody will get his right seat tomorrow night and that there will not be any pushing or crowding in the vicinity of the entrances. This will be pleasant news to those persons who attended the Carlyle A. C.'s show at the Arena.

President Frazee of the Red Sox must have neglected to notify Stuffy McInnis about a salary increase, as the great first baseman is still at his home in Gloucester. The Boston club must have McInnis in line if it hopes to make any kind of a showing in this year's pennant fight.

Higgins Tossed 7's With One Dice, Says Baer

By "BUGS" BAER.

Dear Sir:

I have just completed a telescopic investigation of that Mothers' and Babies' Playground, misbranded Roughtown. The only thing rough is the wash in the town laundry. I also learned that they train Gink by putting him through the mangle. Then they starch his jello backbone and put a stiff around his neck to keep his head up. My man, Rabbitheart Jones, knocked him inside out.

Yours slightly,
Chelsea, in the new 40th State. I. HIGGINS.

By a terrible drag on the memory muscles, we remember Rabbitheart Jones. The champion of Roughtown slipped him one generous poke on the chinpiece and knocked his teeth so far that he had to take a railroad journey to pick them. We also have a hazardous recollection of one J. Higgins, who was Ku Kluxed out of Roughtown seven's with one dice.

Rabbitheart was always in shape. But so is a bad egg. Gink stuffed him on the hat. It was only centrifugal force that kept Rabbit from flying out of his shoes without unlacing them. Tube was one of the nights that Gink had forgotten to take his little bow and arrow into the ring. But he broadsided Rabbit with an enfilading fire of pipe knuckles. Gink went all over Rabbit like a professional tatooer over a sailor.

Rabbit knocked off a loose ten seconds on the Persian canvas. While he was considering ways and means, Gink took a chivalrous kick at him from a non-partisan angle. Rabbit decided he was much safer on his own feet. While he was doping out a laughing exit, the gong rang and saved him up for another round.

Now here was a very morose technicality about Gink's official punching power. His fists were not as other men's lunch spearers. His knuckles were cast en bloc. They were one-piece, like advertised Winter underwear. When a man ran into a wild voyage of Gink's mitts it was like calves in the slaughter house.

For this reason Gink never published his complete walloping chemistry. He used to assassinate his opponents very gently.

He punched many an eagle into the cuckoo class. No bird was too tough for him. The night he met The Glutt in a slugging damsant will live in history's archives until all the sand runs out of the hour glass into the sugar. The Glutt was a ring-footing terror with callouses on his conscience as big as folding doors. He could punch with both feet, and used it to trade two big bruises for one little one.

But Gink was his Simon Legree. Both were training for their big fight in Adam's Sheepshead Bay boarding house. They used to perch opposite ends of the table and eat soup at each other in a very threatening manner. We've got to hand The Glutt thirty days' credit.

Gink couldn't put the bulldoze on him at all. This was in March, 1907. The fight was to be torn off in July, 1908. Both men had but a scant twenty-five years in which to train. Gink claimed that if he ever whipped himself into shape he would whip The Glutt out of shape.

Who was no ideal boxer.

GLADSOME SPRING.

When we would sort flies, or straighten out tackle,
And dream of the days when the pike'rel will tackle,
Or front or lake salmon engage us in battle—
Someone says, "Beat that mat."

And should we just pause at wielding the jigger
That sends the dust swirling, one moment, to jigger,
Out if the old rifle must have a new trigger—
Someone yells, "BEAT that mat."

While if, as we swing, we should strangely remember
The flaws in our golf as revealed last September,
And try out our drive with the carpet whip, slender—
Someone screams, "BEAT THAT MAT!!"

That queens and pawns and other things have values all their own;
They're each won games from Sammy Sherac,
Who comes about up to their Knees,
And they forget that nine-year Sam may slip and pull some bones.

A Bawston accent will predominate among the members of the American golf team which is to enter the British championships, providing no changes in the personnel are made before sailing time. Dulmet, Wright, Newton and Whittemore, all from Greater Beantown, are in the list. No other city boasts more than one representative, while whole heaps of them can't boast a single one.

Major Wilson, the British boxing promoter who recently announced the clinching of a bout between Georgia Carpentier and Frank Moran, of Mary Ann fame, would have us believe that the Dempsey-Carpentier fight is closely related to that Finnegan person—you know, the fellow with one first and two middle names—Offaith Quip Geoagin Finnegan. But we're inclined to string along with Tex Rickard's say so on the subject.

Somerville Firemen to Play Baseball

The Somerville firemen are organizing a baseball team under the direction of Harold Butler, who drives Chief Ritch when not attending to sporting activities of the department. Butler is a veteran of the game, having played on the first Somerville firemen's nine, which defeated the Somerville policemen in two never-to-be-forgotten tragi-comedies on the old Broadway field. Some of the members of the original team are now ranking officers in the department, while others are dead or enjoying pensions. But the new youthful Harold proposes not only to manage, but to play with the new team. HERMAN BOXES IN WORCESTER TONIGHT

Former Bantamweight Champion to Take on Barney Snyder in Ten-Rounder

By RINGSIDE.

Pete Herman, former world's bantamweight champion, battles Barney Snyder of Roxbury in a ten-round bout at Worcester tonight. It will be the New Orleans boy's first appearance in a New England ring and fans are sure to be on hand from Boston and other New England cities.

Herman has been one of the most active fighters in the country since he returned from England, where he knocked out Jimmy Wilde, in his first bout since returning home, he stopped Georgie Adams in jig time. He then stepped forth and walloped Willie Spencer and Johnny Solberg.

The former world's champion cannot afford to lose to Snyder tonight as he is booked to battle Young Montreal of Providence in a ten-round contest at the Armory A. A.'s show at the Arena on April 13. Pete, however, will have to display his best form in order to gain the honors in the Worcester engagement. Snyder has been boxing in good form of late and his ability as a fast, clever boxer and stiff punched is sure to make things mighty interesting for the conqueror of Wilde.

Reservations Ready for Triple A Show Now

Secretary Ivey Lewis of the Armory A. A. announces that reservations may now be secured for the ten-round bout between Pete Herman and Young Montreal, which will be staged at the New Boston Arena of April 13. A rush of fans was expected at the Triple A.'s office at Room 7, No. 41 Court street, as it will be the first time Herman has ever boxed in Boston.

OLMSTED PUT BACK IN HARVARD FIRST BOAT

Ted Olmsted, veteran of two rowing seasons at Harvard, is back on the crew, after being relegated to the scrubs by Coach Bill Haines for a day.

Al Ladd, who took Olmsted's place at four remained in the varsity crew yesterday, but to make way for the latter, Bob Sedgwick, the football star who has been rowing at five, was dropped.

Ladd was moved to No. 7, replacing Lawrence Terry, who was shifted to five, where he rowed last Spring. Captain McCagg is still at six and has about given up the idea of trying his oar at seven, where his weight was too much for the speed of the crew when rowing a high stroke.

The rowing order now is: Bow, John Cudmani two, Harris Morgan three, Al Ladd; four, Ted Olmsted; five, Lawrence Terry; six, Captain McCagg; seven, Hamel La Farge; coxs., Ted Peirce.

BURIED TREASURE

Reincarnation, Love and Adventure Framed in a Fascinating Tale

BY JANE McLEAN

Strange Romance of the Beautiful Daughter of a New York Millionaire

This amazing mystery is founded on a story by F. Britten Austin, which has been made into a wonderful picture drama by Cosmopolitan Productions, under the direction of George D. Baker, starring Marion Davies, the famous screen beauty. It will be shown at the Modern and Beacon theatres the week of April 18.

Synopsis

Pauline Vandermeulen, a charming heiress, is gifted apparently with the power of seeing herself and others in past ages. Her father, an American financial magnate, plans to marry her to the Duc de Chavannes, an impoverished French noble. At a masquerade at the Vandermeulen home she shows deep interest in Dr. John Grant, the best friend of her brother Geoffrey. She and Dr. Grant have a tete-a-tete in the conservatory, and the doctor confesses his love.

MEANWHILE, Pauline was entertaining a bevy of girl friends with some steps that might have been danced by the belles of old Spain. As a senorita of that entrancing period of romance and adventure, the daughter of the house of Vandermeulen presented a perfect picture. From Mary Queen of Scots, Juliet and Marguerite who surrounded her she asked for comments on her costume.

As became a queen, the girl dressed as rival of England's famous ruler surveyed Pauline critically.

"The only fault I find is the fact that light-haired senoritas were never the fashion in Spain."

Marguerite and Juliet chimed in: "Yes; who ever heard of a blonde senorita?"

"There are lots of blondes in Spain," declared Pauline, "and what's more, the Spanish men adore them. Now if I happened to be a brunette senorita I'd correct that little error in my own way."

The girls laughed, and Pauline again breaking into the steps of the old dance pirouetted across the room, pausing to survey herself in the pier glass, while her friends started for the door.

They called, but Pauline remained motionless before the mirror. They called again, but still she did not move, and her attitude of fixed attention excited their curiosity.

They advanced a little cautiously to see what she found so entrancing; they tiptoed toward her and then peered from behind her shoulders into the glass; nothing there but the very true reflection of the senorita with the blonde hair; nothing there but the very true reproduction of her wide-skirted gown shimmering in its richness, but as they eyes traveled to Pauline's they did discover something unusual, and they looked at each other in alarm. For Pauline did not seem to be awake. Mary Queen of Scots shook her.

"Pauline! Pauline! Why, what's the matter—you look as though you were dreaming!"

Pauline shivered a little and started as she turned her eyes to her friends. "I guess that's what I have been doing. I feel as though I'd been looking at myself as I was hundreds of years ago! I feel as though I'd actually worn those clothes before in old Spain. Do you think that could be so, I wonder?" She rubbed her hands over her brow.

Juliet giggled. Pauline tried to smile. "Come, come," cried Marguerite, "let's try on our masks—I don't believe in a past existence."

A Feminine Ruse

"No one will know me," laughed Pauline. "I wonder what the men will be like? They must be all ready by this time; let's find out what they're wearing. There's one man I want to dance with and one I don't."

And, followed by the others, she skipped down the corridor to Geoffrey's room. She did not hesitate to stoop down and apply her curious eye to the keyhole, but only for a second; she wanted to know what Dr. Grant would wear, but she also wanted to know in what costume Henri Marie Josef would appear; his room was next. Understanding the girls to be quiet, she repeated the performance and evidently found something to her satisfaction, for she smiled and, with a finger crooked in the direction of the keyhole, whispered: "Who's next?" They laughed. "All right," said Pauline; "hurry up, they'll be out in a minute."

Mary Queen of Scots peeked first, giggled and gave way to Marguerite, who in her turn surrendered the point of vantage to Juliet. Inside the room Geoffrey and his friend, having adjusted their masks, heard a strange noise outside the door.

With a lightning rapidity, Geoffrey pulled it open. In fell the startled Juliet, while the others scurried away.

"The punishment," said Geoffrey in a high voice to his captive, whom he held in a light embrace, "for breaking into a room at night is a kiss, solemnly delivered."

Juliet struggled, but the odds were too great. Pulling frantically at her mask, she managed at last to escape, uncertain whether Geoffrey of the Doctor had escaped the penalty imposed on her curiosity.

Stolen Looks

Inside the big ballroom the Pirate of Wall Street stood with Lady Washington, surveying a scene of splendor. The duke had outdone himself; in fact, he looked as one of his fighting ancestors might have looked when the great Louis made and unmade empires.

He stopped in the midst of a conversation with his host: "I hope to have good news tonight," he said.

The Pirate grunted acquiescence—in his own mind he had no doubt that Pauline would be much honored by his proposal. It isn't every day that a girl can become a duchess of the old nobility.

But the Duke had one difficulty—he couldn't find Miss Vandermeulen; he didn't know her costume; he had imagined vainly that she would be easy to find; he flattered himself that her personality would stand forth, marking her out among the others; but a mask does wonders as a concealer of identities, and His Grace decided to appeal for information to Mr. Vandermeulen.

The object of his solicitude, seated demurely on a settee close to an arch, watched him with delight; her peep into his room had told her the man she wanted to avoid; likewise she had learned that the figure standing disconsolately almost at her knee was Dr. John Grant.

Thrilling Scene at Ball

William Vandermeulen, "the Pirate of Wall Street," after the masked ball, demands that his daughter, Pauline, marry the Duc de Chavannes. She refuses and he threatens her. The picture shows father, daughter and her brother, Geoffrey. Marion Davies, the screen star, who takes the part of Pauline in the picture drama version of the story, appears in the same character in the picture above.

Pauline did not propose to let the grass grow under her feet for lack of little initiative. While the Duke was questioning her father as to her costume she leaned forward and, pulling the lace sleeve of the cavalier invited his attention.

The Doctor, staring at the masked dancers with the hope that he would be able to discover Pauline, turned impatiently to see a senorita charmingly inviting him to take a seat beside her. His reticence made the lady all the more insistent.

"Is it not the leap year?" she asked in a voice which he could not place, "and am I too bold to ask the brave cavalier for the honor of the dance?" There was nothing for the young man to do but to assure the senorita that he would be highly delighted to dance, and, taking her arm, the two whirled away under the very eyes of Chavannes, who had not the remotest idea he was so near the object of his search.

The dance over, the senorita declared herself tired. "The cavalier will escort me to a seat behind the palms," said Pauline, still maintaining her secret and again the Doctor, unwilling to be rude even to a persistent charmer from old Spain, set himself beside her on a low marble seat over-shadowed by greenery.

A Bashful Lover

"Ah, senor, you are distracted this evening."

"Oh, no, senorita—not at all, not at all."

"You can't do that, I'm afraid."

"Can't I? Suppose I, too, remove my mask," and she proceeded to give him a glimpse of her face.

"Is that all you have to say?"

"Oh, no, Pauline, you know what I want to say; you know I love you, but have I the right to ask you to start in with me while I'm making my way?"

"I do not know. Even in leap year, how can I answer a question like that if the question isn't formally asked?"

CHAPTER V.

When Pauline gave Dr. Grant his opportunity at the masquerade ball the Doctor's reticence was truly annoying. Pauline smiled inwardly when she saw how eager he was to claim her, and yet how his scruples about the paucity of his worldly possessions held him back. Surely if ever any man had an incentive to declare his love boldly, Dr. Grant had one now, for what could be more alluring than the fascinating senorita who nestled close to his side and practically asked him to ask her?

"Pauline," cried the young man desperate, "I do ask you to marry me. I love you to distraction—I loved you the moment I set my eyes on you and I've felt at times that I've always loved you; you know what I mean, from the beginning of time."

Pauline was sober enough now. "John, I will marry you—I've felt it, too; I've felt that I've known you before, and, John, I've actually seen you and myself centuries ago. Don't laugh; it's true."

"I shan't laugh; you're mine now and forever, past and present and future," and he seized her in his arms and kissed her as a true lover should.

Vanished were scruples about riches and poverty; gone was everything but the bliss of knowing that her heart was his, as his was hers. The girl looked up at him with shining eyes. "John, dear, don't worry about being poor, for I have a feeling that father will cut me off without even the story-book shilling, unless I marry the Duke."

In their absorption both had forgotten that a ballroom is not the most secluded place in the world. Walls have ears and so do dukes, and Chavannes, at that inauspicious moment in passing behind the shrubbery, caught enough of Pauline's words to assure him that another man was making love to the woman he sought to wed.

In his excitement the Duke tipped over a palm, which fell with a crash to the marble floor, and caused Pauline and her escort to resume their masks with frightened haste.

"Who did that?" asked Pauline. "Oh, dear, I hope nobody heard us or saw us."

The Doctor echoed her thought.

Tragedy of the Sea Where Heroine's Spirit Lived in Buccaneer Days

Pauline was quick to act and the kind Providence that watches over the fate of lovers sent to her aid in this crucial moment the smiling Geoffrey and Marguerite.

"Don't ask any questions!" she cried, in an undertone, seizing his arm; "here, John, walk away with Marguerite, and Geoff you sit and make love to me as though you'd been doing it all evening—hurry."

Did Pauline have the gift of second sight? Did she imagine that the listener who had overturned the palm might have been the Duc de Chavannes? There was no time for her astonished fiance or her equally astonished brother to ask reasons, for while the new partners were settling into their forced new roles His Grace Henri Josef was proving that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points.

His celerity in finding his host did credit to his powers of locomotion, and when he appeared at the side of the complacent Pirate, the latter hardly recognized in his excited manner his usually calm guest.

Mr. Vandermeulen at once evidenced all the ferocity of a real pirate:

"Come with me." The Duke led the way softly, triumphantly, and the two marched toward the fallen little clump of palms behind which two masked figures were engaged in what seemed to be a lovable tete a tete.

The Duke pointed: "There they are," and the Pirate of Wall Street bore down on the culprits with all the swagger and fierceness of a real freebooter.

He grasped Pauline by the arm, and spoke with the authority of one whom word was law: "Take off your mask at once."

"Oh, father, what's the matter?"

"Never mind; do as I tell you; and you, young man, do the same."

"Buried Treasure" will be continued tomorrow, in which installment Pauline's father plans a yachting trip to get her away from Dr. Grant.

"FOR LOVE"

An Absorbing Romance By Ruby M. Ayres

"SHE could have been if she'd liked," Peter said quickly without thinking. "He asked her and she refused him. • • • Oh, Bonnie, I'm sorry. I never meant to tell you, but you made me."

Peter put his arm about her. He bent and rubbed his head against her shoulder.

"It's all over and done with, anyway," he said remorsefully. "I'm glad you knew, though. It was decent of Philip to have told you. Of course, I can't blame him. Any fellow would like Kitty. • • • I don't know what she can see in me. I know I'm not half good enough for her. • • •"

Eva clenched her teeth. She felt an insane desire to scream out to him—

"It's money she sees. She only wants money from you. Just as it was all that Philip wanted from me. . . . Don't do it, Peter. If you only knew how it will hurt when you find out that it's only our money and not us that they want!"

But she kept silent.

"The old man was rather glad on the whole," Peter went on presently. "He said I was a bit young, of course, and that we must wait a year or two—but he didn't object—he said he'd always liked Kitty."

"Yes."

"And you'll like her, too, when you get to know her better. She's fond of you—she's said so heaps of times, but she doesn't think you like her, and she thinks it's because Philip once. . . . Well, you know."

"She needn't think that—" said Eva stiffly.

"No, I know; I was sure of that. Philip and you are married, and she's let it all over and done with." His arm tightened about her a little. "After all, he's a lucky dog; he's got the best wife in the world."

"Thank you, Peter."

"So he has—and if he doesn't think so. . . . Bonnie! You go and see Kitty one day? She'd be pleased—"

"Yes, I'll go—of course I will." She laughed with a sudden recklessness. "What a lot has happened in a little while, Peter! I'm married, and you're engaged, and to two people whom we thought cared for each other. . . . Isn't it a funny world, Peter?"

"I think it's rather a nice world," Peter said soberly. "Here we are—shall I come in, Bonnie?"

"Oh, do—of course."

They went up the winding drive together; a light from a window shone out into the darkness; Eva crossed the hall and pushed the library door wide. Philip was there alone; he did not look particularly pleased when he saw his brother-in-law.

"Peter's got some news," Eva Eva said. She looked at her husband with hard, bright eyes.

"Peter's engaged to Kitty Arlington," she said.

There was a sharp silence; Philip looked dumbfounded, then—

"Not!" he said, shortly.

The blank amusement in his face was comical. Eva began to laugh hysterically.

"It's true," she said. "Isn't it, Peter? Tell him yourself."

"It's quite true," Peter said sulkily. "And you're not very polite," he added offendedly.

Philip pulled himself together with an effort.

"I beg your pardon, old chap—I'm sorry—but I was so surprised—I never thought. . . ."

He held out his hand. "Congratulations," he said, heartily.

"Thank you," Peter began to smile again; he was very much of a boy still. "Thanks awfully."

He went off a little later in the best of spirits.

"I'm going to bring Kitty over one day," he said.

"Do," said Philip grimly.

He was wondering why he was so little moved at this unexpected announcement; it only showed that he had never really cared for her, of course—he went back to the room where Eva waited with a sort of abashed long in his eyes.

"If you're trying to drive me mad, you're succeeding admirably," he said hoarsely. "You never used to be like this, Eva—for Heaven's sake, . . . Don't you see that I'm nearly at the end of my tether? I can't go on like this—I can't. I'll do anything you want—anything, if only you'll try not to despise me so."

For a moment Eva did not move, then: "And—Kitty Arlington?" she asked slowly.

Philip clenched his hands. "What has been talking about her? She's nothing to me."

"You asked her to marry you."

"I was a fool—she threw me over at the first hint of trouble—it was only the things that I could give her that she wanted. When I told her that the survivor. . . ." He broke off, realizing too late what he had done.

Eva had risen to her feet. "So it was only then!" She laughed bitterly. "She threw you over one day and you came to me the next!" she swept him a mocking curtsey.

"I am indeed highly honored."

Eva had never meant to be drawn into this discussion at all. She was appalled now to realize how she must have changed during the past three weeks to ever be able to speak to him like this—to be able to sneer at him—the man she loved with her whole heart.

When He Joked

Smith visited his friend Jones, the playwright, and observed with regret that Jones treated his wife shamefully. So he said to Jones:

"Why do you talk so roughly to your wife?"

"I hate doing it, but I'm obliged to," returned Jones.

"How are you obliged to?"

"Well, you see, I am writing a tragedy and I have to keep myself in a proper frame of mind. You should see how I joke with her when I'm writing a comedy!"

"YES," Sophia repeated, as neither of her children spoke, "I want to go back where people know me—and like me in spite of it."

"I will see what Pelham thinks of your opening the old house," Peter told his mother. "He is coming on to New York next week. He writes that there are some business matters he must discuss with Mort and me. Of course the house is just as you left it, mother. If you want to go back there, it's well that Pelham discouraged our idea of selling it."

"I guess he's been right in most of his advice," Sophia said. "I know your father always trusted him."

She could not know that in the living-room her brother was thinking along the same lines. What it would mean to him and Theo to get away from this New York life which people spoke of Theo as "only a chorus girl," and would never accept her as she should be accepted — where he had made a fool of himself, and where trouble had come to them all.

"If I had only started in business out in Nelsonville, as Dad wanted me to!" he sighed. "But then I would never have met Theo had I done that—so I am thankful I came to New York. But I wish I could get away from it after we are married!"

The next week Henry Pelham arrived.

He reminded the two young men that he was getting old—and was still hoping to retire from active life before long—but not until he could leave the business in the hands of those more youthful and vigorous than himself.

"It has occurred to me that after you and Mary are married you might come out West and take cottages near your mother. She says she will not spoil the lives of the second generation—that is the way she puts it—by having the young people live with her.

"I am an old bachelor — but I guess she's right. Think over my suggestion and let me know your decision."

Three days later, after a long talk with Mary and Theo, Peter and his friend came to a decision. In their hearts they had decided while Henry Pelham was still talking to them. They would move out to Nelsonville as soon as was practicable after the double wedding.

Feast and Famine in Coal

It takes a steady average production of 45,000,000 tons of bituminous coal a month to supply normal consumption in the United States, of which 15 per cent. is in homes, 30 per cent. by railroads and the remainder in miscellaneous industry.

In the first quarter of 1921 the monthly production has not averaged 30,000,000 tons.

The miners are not striking. There are plenty of empty coal cars. The public is not buying; factory engines are stilled.

We may have again the experience of last Autumn—a slack Summer demand, then a belated rush, congestion, soaring prices, fear and almost the realization of paralysis.

Many mining companies prefer that because then they can profiteer. But it is a bad business policy, which the government must stop if the mine owners don't.

Coal—even bituminous—isn't perishable. It can be stored. Needs can be foreseen to within a small margin.

Public ownership of coal mines, public ownership of railroads, public control of stored coal reserves would permit a more even distribution of mining, steadier and fairer prices and the protection of workers in steady employment and consumers in fairer prices. No great industry has been so mismanaged and so non-progressive as the coal industry.

Get Out and Stay Out

Congressman Britten, from Chicago, declares that he intends to introduce a resolution into the new Congress calling upon the President of the United States to make representations to France and to the League of Nations in favor of withdrawing the black troops from Germany.

We doubt not the immeasurable atrocity of keeping these troops in Germany, but we do doubt the wisdom and the dignity of Mr. Britten's contemplated resolution. We are out of Europe in spirit now. We do not want to stick our official noses in that unsavory pie again if we can help it. We take it that the new administration will keep its promise and obey its instructions from the people to withdraw the few soldiers which we now have in Europe.

If France wants to continue the course which she has steadily pursued since the armistice, of alienating American public opinion and of depriving herself of the advantage of that admiration and sympathy which the majority of the people entertained for her, we do not see how we can prevent it.

Some day France will return to sobriety. That combination of bankers, steel magnates, monarchists, militarists and war profiteers which now rules France will sometime be overthrown, and the French peasant and the French workmen will be represented effectually in the government.

When that time comes and the new regime takes an account of stock, it will find how much it has lost, how much French imperialism since the war has cost France.

If she thinks she can afford to throw away the great asset of American sympathy and admiration for the justice of her cause during the war and the heroic way she maintained it, let her take the risk. We cannot wetnurse France or any other European country. We do not want to do it. Indeed, the American people are determined that we shall not.

The Menace of Ignorance

Absolutism is necessitated by ignorance.

Democracy develops in proportion as intelligence increases.

That is all there is to it.

There is no sense in beating about for strange and curious reasons why we are oppressed, why we suffer from the tyranny of rings, gangs, trusts or bosses; nor why some persons enjoy unearned privilege and others suffer, though worthy.

There is but one reason—ignorance.

There is but one cure—intelligence.

You get rid of the wrongs of government and the torts of men only as you raise the level of thinking among the masses.

We have as good a government as we deserve.

Also in all the profiteering and manipulation of shrewd power we got what was coming to us.

It is ignorance every oppressor of mankind plays upon. The despot rules simply because his subjects have not sense enough to organize and get rid of him.

The religious persecutor leads the people to fanatic violence and himself to place and rule because he knows the technique of handling their superstitious fears.

The arbitrary potentate in business, who lives in luxury while he keeps workmen toiling under unfair conditions, holds his power only so long as people are too stupid to get together and check him.

The demagogue is but a pimple on the body politic showing the poison of ignorance in the blood.

Enthusiastic reformers are prone to fancy that if we could get a perfect government everybody would be happy and prosperous.

They would not.

To give a perfect government to an ignorant populace would do about as much good as to present a grand piano to a Blackfoot Indian.

The fundamental error with all ideal theories of government is that what ails us is bad government. They are wrong.

It is a part of the old error, the most ancient error of mankind—to wit: that circumstances make us.

Quite the contrary; we make circumstances.

We are forever looking to externals. But only from within comes healing and progress.

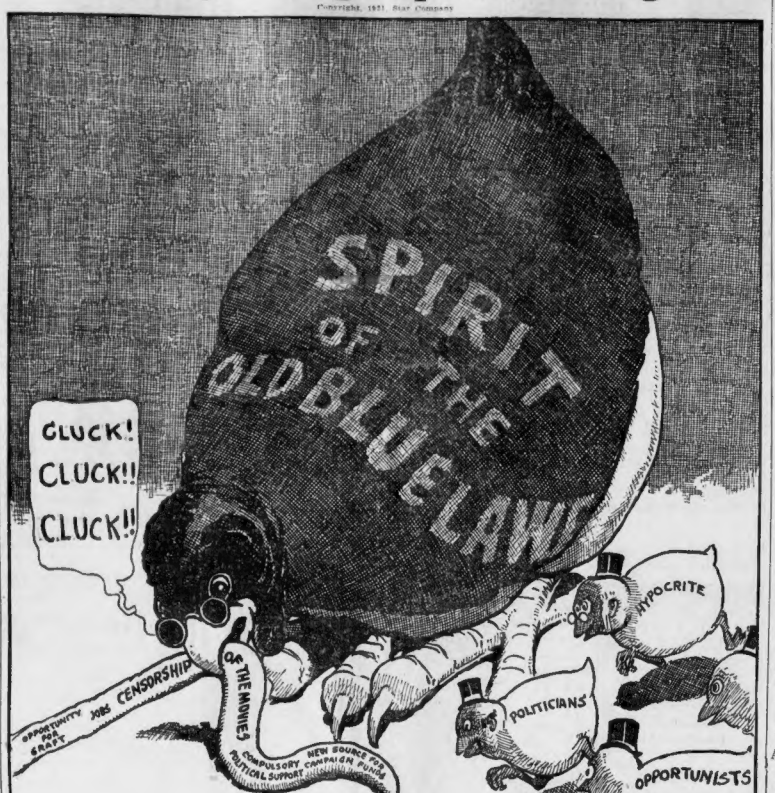
When they are sick they take drugs, instead of behaving themselves and getting well.

When they are in grief they look around for somebody or something to blame, instead of looking within.

To tell the truth, to expose humbugs, to train children to think straight, to learn discipline, and to train and develop our intelligence, this is the only way out for men, women and nations.

Before a people clear-eyed, unafraid, resourceful and understanding the arts of organization, tyrants, rascals and political confidence men flee as bats before the sunlight.

Biddy's Dug Up Something



TRAGEDY OF A WIFE WHO NAGGED

Nellie Bly Continues Story of Woman Who Wrecked Own Life and Brought Sorrow and Death to Those She Loved Best.

The confession of a nagging wife, made in a letter to Nellie Bly and begun in yesterday's Boston American, is continued below:

By Nellie Bly

"YEARS passed. I bore him three lovely children, two girls and the baby, a boy. My daughter by my first husband worshipped him as he worshipped her, and he was proud of his home and family. He had become very successful in law and had a large and prosperous practice. He was a good mixer; a jolly companion; was greatly in demand as a speaker at banquets, and had filled important and popular political positions.

"During all these years my nagging never ceased. It became worse and more bitter the more popular he was, and instead of giving the balm to my love as he had formerly by meeting my accusations with declarations of undying affection, he now answered me always by saying my accusations would drive him away to do just what I accused him of doing.

Finds Other Woman's Card

"On New Year's, when sorting the mail, I saw him open a letter and quickly slide it into his pocket. Immediately I was on fire. I felt I had him convicted. I demanded the letter. He refused to give it. I even tried to take it away from him by force, but, tearing loose my clinging hands, he shoved me away and angrily left the house.

"That night, when he undressed and went in to take a bath before putting on his evening clothes, I grabbed up his coat, which he had thrown carelessly upon a chair, and in the pocket found the letter. I tore it open. It was a New Year's card with the engraved words: 'A Happy New Year,' and underneath it was written: 'To a very good lawyer.' and signed with the name of a woman known everywhere in society and charities. He stood transfixed when he came from the bathroom and saw me with the letter in my hands. I did not know the woman personally, only by name. But my jealousy made me heap every sort of abuse upon my husband. I was crazy. I knew no limit to my words. And when he tried to regain possession of the card, I angrily tore it into a hundred little bits and threw it upon the floor. Then I left the room and went downstairs to receive my New Year's guests.

"My husband did not make his appearance. I waited anxiously and nervously. Finally I sent the butler to see what had become of him. In a few minutes the man returned and whispered to me:

"When I realized my husband had gone I was paralyzed with fear. I felt the end of the world had come. I don't know to this hour what excuses I made to my guests, nor how I got through that dinner. I have not the slightest recollection of anything I said at the table nor what was said to me, but I must have in a semi-conscious condition acted quite naturally, for I did not afterwards hear any comments.

"Finally the battle within me came to an end. I was weak and worn and penitent. I no longer had strength to rave about his possible unfaithfulness. I only knew I wanted him back, it didn't matter how. I just wanted him. I shivered with fear when I thought he might refuse to return. And at last I yielded. I telephoned his office. He was not there. I telephoned every club, but could not find him. Again I telephoned his office, only to receive the same answer—that he was not there. Then I sent him a little note, penitent and pitiful. I told him I was sorry. I swore I would never accuse him of misdeeds again. I told him the children had cried for him constantly and would not be comforted. I vowed to be the most patient, loving and devoted wife if he would only come back. I reminded him that it was my love which drove me to such extremes.

"Then I waited, my nerves strained to the utmost, for his reply. Every ring at the telephone, every knock at the door, every sound of a footstep seemed to promise me happiness and my husband's return. But always I was doomed to disappointment. Several days went by and my letter was unanswered. And although I forgot my pride and again telephoned everywhere, I did not succeed in finding him. At last our baby boy developed a cold and fever, and I, helpless and unnerved, fell upon my bed, declaring I was ill and dying. My eldest daughter, frightened and sobbing, ran to the 'phone and calling my husband's office, announced that I was ill and dying and that the baby was also.

"An hour later I was lying sobbing in my husband's arms. He had returned.

"I don't know how many days elapsed before the old fears and doubts and suspicions began to weaken all my determination. I found myself growing more suspicious each day. If my husband was late arriving home, I believed only the worst. If he left earlier than usual, I felt sure he had some rendezvous before office hours.

Brooded Long

"Then one day the devil got into me. I had brooded so long over my imaginations that they all seemed real and unbearable. I got a sudden idea if I would go to his office unexpectedly I would learn something. What, I did not know. Only I felt it must be something incriminating and disagreeable and fearful. Something I must fight with all my strength to keep my husband and to prevent some one else getting him.

"I went to his office about noon. He was not there. The boy told me he was in court and invited me to wait in my husband's private office. I sat down chiding myself for my fears. I reproached myself and shamed myself, and reminded myself of the vows I had made if he would only return.

"Then I noticed suddenly that my husband's private safe stood open. Actually I believe the devil whispered in my ear to look. I did. Feverishly and nervously I ransacked through the bundles of papers held together by rubber-bands, but found nothing I understood or that looked compromising. Then I opened a little black drawer and saw within an envelope. I picked it up. It was sealed.

To Be Concluded Tomorrow.

He Plucked a Flower

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

THEY stood at the garden gate;
By the lifting of a lid
She might have read her fate
In a little thing he did.

He plucked a beautiful flower,
Tore it away from its place,
On the side of the blooming bower,
And held it against his face.

Drank in its beauty and bloom
In the midst of his idle talk;
Then cast it down to the gloom
And dust of the garden walk.

Ay, trod it under his foot
As it lay in his pathway there,
Then spurned it away with his boot
Because it had ceased to be fair.

Ah! the maiden might have read
The doom of her young life then,
But she looked in his eyes instead
And thought him the king of men.

She looked in his eyes and blushed,
She hid in his strong arms' fold;
And the tale of the flower, crushed
And spurned, was once more told.

AMERICAN ENGLISH AS SEEN THERE

By The Spectator

FROM a dictionary of slang published in England in 1913 and learnedly compiled by somebody named Ware, we take the following definitions. If Americans understand English as little as English understand Americans, we should be hardly on speaking terms, that is, if we go by Ware.

Br'er Ware's list of Americanisms is rich, and some of his definitions richer. For instance:

"Baseball—small, insignificant, from the size of the ball in question; as, 'a baseball moustache.'" (Wrong—the allusion is to the nine hairs on each side.)

"Blank please—a negative euphemism for 'damned please.'" (Ware thinks both words are cuss words.)

"Bunko—doubtful, shifty." (Really, a cheat.)

Simply a Goose

"Chump—a youth who is cheated of his money, especially by the gentler sex." (A chump is simply a goose.)

"Confidence Queen—a female detective." (Can you beat that?)

Here is a bird (to use an Americanism). "Dime Museum—a common show, a poor piece; from New York, which has a passion for monstrosity displays called Dime Museums, the dime being the eighth of a dollar."

"Dirt road—the highway, as distinct from the railroad, which is graveled; probably railway official satire." (In this effort at definition by Mr. Ware are at least six jokes. Count 'em).

"Doughnut—a baker, especially of the German variety, probably from the too frequent flabby, dougby face of the sickly operative." (If you don't laugh at that you are impossible and I shall never speak to you again.)

"Eighteen Carat Lie—a good, sound lie, eighteen carat gold being good, thorough metal." (What the dickens does "thorough" mean? It can't mean pure, since pure gold is more than eighteen carat).

"Get the G. B.—dismissed, G. B. meaning 'go by.'" (Wrong again, Archibald. It means "grand bounce.")

A "Pippin"

"On his ear—from American mothers' grabbing their boys' ears while battling in the street with other boys." (Isn't that a pippin?)

"On his feet—ruined." If any American living or dead, ever heard that location made that way let him stand up and be counted.)

"Sam Hill—some hell."

"Real healthy—well brained." O Ware, Ware, where did you get this stuff?)

And last and goldurnedest of all in this list of things English people suppose Americans to say:

"Torchlight procession—one of the more fiery American drinks." (One dollar reward to anybody who ever heard of one.)

INTERESTING FACTS ON PANAMA CANAL

By Garrett P. Serviss

Will you kindly give me the following information: At the canal the Pacific Ocean is from ten to thirty feet higher than the Atlantic Ocean. As water seeks its own level, what prevents it from flowing around Cape Horn or through the Straits of Magellan and levelling itself with the Atlantic?—"EX-GOB." Woodhaven, N. Y.

IF you will look at a good map of the western coast of South America from ten degrees north latitude to Cape Horn, the explanation that you seek will stand plain before your eyes. The Bay of Panama is a "cul-de-sac" for the water driven toward the American coast by the equatorial counter-current of the Pacific Ocean.

The bay opens southward, and its eastern shore is continuous with the coast of Colombia and Ecuador, which bends gradually westward until it is several degrees farther west than Panama. Consequently, the Pacific current above spoken of slides into the Bay of Panama as easily as a hand into a glove, but to get out again the water has to contend with the entering current.

Surface Varies

The result is a heaping-up, or a rise of level, in the bay, varying with the ratio of the amount of water arriving to that leaving. But always there appears to be sufficient surplus of water to keep the level of the bay above mean sea level, and above the level of the Atlantic water in the Caribbean Sea at the northern end of the canal.

You see, it is simply a question of always having more than enough funds to meet expenses. Neptune's representative who governs the maritime province of Panama Bay is luckily placed, for his deposit in bank is never drawn down to zero. But there are places on the shores of the oceans where a continual deficit exists, and where the deputy holders of the trident can never get their account to show a favorable balance, to say nothing of having a constant surplus.

Curious Form

This indicates what a curious form the actual surface of the ocean would present if we could see it all in a single picture. It would show protuberances and depressions, not great, of course, but yet calculated to surprise those who think that "sea-level" means an absolutely spheroidal surface. The rendered of science in an assumed mean level of the oceans, and, like the mean time that regulates our clocks and watches, it only now and then, or here and there, agrees with the actual facts.

Other causes besides ocean currents, winds and tides tend to produce local differences of sea level. Among the most interesting of these is the existence of subterranean masses of unusual density, which alter the direction of gravity, and huge uplands and mountain ranges not far from coasts, which, by their attraction, tend to increase the elevation of the water along those coasts.

Stars Tell All About Stillman

The stars know all about it!

"If astrology were admitted as evidence in a court of law, it would clear Baby Guy Stillman of the stigma upon his birth," declares Professor William H. Maccabee, well-known astrologer, in next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

The stars, he says, know all the family history of the Stillmans; they tell exactly what kind of person each of the principals in this more than triangular affair is—his or her possessions, personalities, influences, tendencies.

On the other hand, the stars know of two other women in Mr. Stillman's life besides the now notorious Mrs. Leeds—and Professor Maccabee adds that it will be interesting to note if developments in the Stillman trial divulge the identity of these other women.

The stars say, however, that all proceedings will be suddenly withdrawn, and a private settlement made, after which Mrs. Stillman will go abroad for several years.

Seven hundred and twenty quarts —12,240 separate drinks! How would you like to be turned loose on that? Well, you should have been a guest on Millionaire Black's private car. But there's a sad sequel to the story. Millionaire Black got pinched. The stuff was seized, and so was the private cellarer, Jones—but read the story next Sunday.

Mrs. Leonard Thomas, whom Artist Hulleu called "the most beautiful woman in America," was, and is, society's poetess. But she isn't Mrs. Leonard Thomas any more. She's Mrs. John Barrymore and the Barrymores are soon t appear in a play of hers. Now, Mr. Thomas is newly wed, too. All about it next Sunday.
